The history of the Cutts family in America has never been written before. So little, in fact, has ever appeared in print concerning the male line of the family, that it has been an exceedingly difficult task to complete.

A number of able people have devoted their spare moments to the subject, some of whom have been taken away before they could complete their work. The most able of these, perhaps, to have given the family a valuable book, was the late Mr. John Wingate Thornton of Boston, Mass. While that which now appears is the combined result of the labors of many, and free access has been gained to all unpublished papers written on the subject, it cannot be of the value that it would have been if one individual could have given it undivided attention. The genealogical tables of the earlier generations are probably as complete as they will ever be made, for the sources from which they might have been drawn (the earliest records of Portsmouth, N. H., and Kittery, Me.), are sadly incomplete. Those of the later generation could be much fuller, if by waiting, there were any probability of their being completed. The indifference manifested by representatives of some branches will account for their non-completion.

The search in English records has been prosecuted to a considerable extent by more than one member of the family without any direct result. It is, therefore, believed best to devote this volume entirely to the American branch of the Cutts family, — as any thing like a complete history of the English family of this name would fill a second volume. In a work of this nature it is to be expected that some dates and historical facts will have been overlooked. Every one who discovers such will confer a favor by notifying the compiler, that they may be corrected in a second edition.

In the arrangement of this work the compiler has received valuable assistance and encouragement from Mrs. Mary Lowell Putnam of Boston, Mass., Hon. Richard Cutts Shannon of New York, N. Y., and Mrs. Hannah Drew Hutchings of Kittery, Me.

Grateful acknowledgments are also due for many and valued aids in various directions, to the following persons: Messrs. Chas. H. Ladd, Alex H Ladd, Rev. Henry E. Hovey, Rev. Alfred Langdon Elwyn, and Miss Amelia McAllister White of Portsmouth, N. H.; Mrs. Edward Low, and Miss Myra Raynes of York, Me.; Miss Mary Elizabeth Gunnison, and Edward F. Safford of Kittery, Me.; Dr. John R. Ham of Dover, N. H.; Col. Chas. C. G. Thornton, Miss Elizabeth T. Thornton, Mrs. Eleanor Vaughan Tufts, Messrs. Thos. W. Penhallow, F. W.

Reynolds, Pierrepont Wise, and John Ward Dean of Boston, Mass.; Hon. Edward Appleton of Reading, Mass.; the Misses Sparhawk of Newton Centre, Mass.; Mrs. L. R. Clement of Brookline, Mass.; Dr. Jos. B. Cutts of St. Louis, Mo.; Dr. H. M. Cutts of Brookline, Mass.; L. L. Cutts of Newport, N. H.; Jos. A. Cutts of Claremont, N. H.; the Misses Cutts of Faribault, Minn., Wm. G. ## INTRODUCTION.

One of the earliest known records of the Cutts family in New England is where, in 1640, one William Cutt was taxed in Saco, Maine. He and Lawrence Cutt (taxed in Portsmouth, N. H., in 1680), may have been brothers of Richard Cutt, who, in 1646, succeeded Sampson Lane (one of Capt. John Mason's stewards) in the occupation of what was known as the "Great House."* Portsmouth was then commonly called "Strawberry Bank," on account of the great number of strawberries to be found on the bank of the river above the "Great House." This was built by one Chadbourne, in 1631, near the bank of the main river, about three miles from its mouth. It was situated near the corner of Water and Pitt streets, and first occupied by Thomas Warnerton, one of Mason's stewards. In 1635 (Aug. 21), Roger Cutt (æ. 20), was transported to Virginia, and may have been the ancestor of the Georgia family of that name. Nothing definite, however, is known on this point, beyond the fact, as shown in "Hotten's Original Lists," of his embarking at that time for Virginia. In 1657, John Cutt is first mentioned in Portsmouth's records, as one of the five selectmen that year. It is supposed that he and his brothers, Richard and Robert, came from England to this country prior to 1646. Robert Cutt going first to the Barbadoes, in the West Indies, and afterward to Portsmouth (living at Great Island, now known as New Castle). He removed from there to Kittery, Maine.

Richard Cutt was first a resident at the Isle of Shoals, and removed later to Portsmouth, while John Cutt always lived in Portsmouth. There lived too, at Portsmouth (of whom some account will be given later), one John Cutt, Jr., who was, probably, a nephew of these three brothers. Beside these seven of the name, who have been known as residents for a greater or less period of time in this country, there was a sister, Anne Cutt, who was married to John Shipway, a merchant of Portsmouth.

The following pages give an extended genealogy of four of these seven, namely: the descendants of John, Richard, Robert, and Anne Cutt, who are known, by their wills, to have been brothers and sister. In the back of the volume, so far as readily obtainable, the descendants of John Cutt, Jr., and some account of the Georgia family.

The earliest records of the family give the name as CUTT, and it was not universally known as CURTS until 1745, nearly a hundred years after they first arrived.

It is not known whether the final "s" was dropped when they came to this country for political reasons or some other cause. It is said that when one of the New England family went to the siege of Louisbourg, he met an English officer of the name who established a relationship between them, and after that the family in New England were universally known as CUTTS. In the limits of a single volume it has been impossible to do equal justice to the historical as well as the genealogical portions of the family record, so the compiler has decided to place the genealogical first, with biographical notes therein and a few biographical notes in the back of the volume. The aim has been, in as brief a space as possible, to give the records of an old New England family, who, after a period of over two hundred and forty years, have spread from Maine to California, and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

In these pages there will be found a few names well known to students of literature and history. They are all descendants, however, in the female branches of the family. Among them we may mention the late Hon. James Russell Lowell, Benjamin P. Shillaber (Mrs. Partington), General Fitz John Porter, and Hon. Richard Cutts Shannon. Of the equally well-known men who have married Cutts descendants we can mention Hon. John Langdon, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, Stephen A. Douglass, and Wm. Henry Bishop.

Extended notice of their lives is unnecessary, as all students are well posted in regard to them.

The simplest form possible has been used in giving the genealogical tables (the numerical), and it is not believed it will need an explanation. The abbreviations are "b." for born; "m." for married; and "d." for died; "d. y." signifies died in youth. "H. C." is the abbreviation for Harvard College, and the date following signifies the year of graduation.

DESCENDANTS OF "JOHN CUTT (JR)"

"John Cutt (Jr.)," as he is familiarly known to most students of the early history of Portsmouth, was not, as is sometimes supposed, a son of President John Cutt, the date of his birth precluding any possibility of it. He was twelve years of age when President John Cutt was married, having been born in 1650. Whether he was born in this country or Great Britain cannot at this late date be determined. Bearing the same name as the well-known President John Cutt, he was known as "John Cutt (Jr.)" in all public records as a mark of distinction. It is supposed that he was a nephew of the three brothers, and, with them, located on the banks of the Piscataqua river. He was a mariner and for many years commanded the bark "Friends-Increase" of Portsmouth, which sailed between that place and London. His name is recorded among the communicants of the Congregational church in 1691, and also upon the list of signatures to the petition from New Hampshire, of 1690, to be reannexed to Massachusetts. He died at Portsmouth, July 30, 1695.

On the 15th of June, 1672, he married Sarah Martyn (b. July 3, 1657), a daughter of *Hon. Richard and Sarah (Tuttle†) Martyn of Portsmouth. She was living, as his widow, in 1728, as appears by her deed

OBITUARY.

“The circle is broken,—one seat is forsaken,—
 One heart from among us no longer shall thrill
 With joy in our gladness, or grief in our ill.”

Capt. Charles Ramsdell, whose death on Wednesday evening, the eleventh inst., has been briefly noticed in these columns, was born at what is now Lubec,

Maine, on the 11th of July, 1807. He was the son of Capt. Daniel and Elizabeth (Cutts) Ramsdell, who early came from Portsmouth, N. H., and settled in that part of the town of Eastport since incorporated under the name of Lubec. Like his father, the young man was born and bred to the sea, and at a tender age became familiarized with the toils, hardships and privations which beset those who "go down to the sea in ships." His early training in the fishing craft of the harbor and bay soon led him to a wider field, that of the merchant service of his country, then recovering from the blighting effects of the last war with Great Britain.

Capt. Ramsdell soon rose to the command of vessels engaged in the coasting and West India business, and was also engaged with his brother William in running one of the numerous packets which regularly plied between Massachusetts ports and Passamaquoddy, whose business is now done principally by the regular and swift going steamers of the International Line. The building of the iron works, the establishing of salt works, saw mills, and the beginning of that era of extensive ship-building, which brought Pembroke into prominence in the early thirties, making the town a center of business activity and phenomenal growth seldom witnessed in the history of the country, attracted among others the young captain, who with his little family became residents of the town in 1839.

Capt. Ramsdell and his brother, the late Capt. Daniel Ramsdell, bought adjoining farms on the west side of Innarkuan Bay, about a mile and a half below the town, the latter occupying his until his death, the former soon after this event removing to a home in the village, which was destroyed by fire several years after, when he bought the finely-situated and pleasant residence known as the McKinsie place, between the two villages, where he lived until July, 1882, when on the evening of the fourth of that month fire once more destroyed his buildings. The Carter place, near the Baptist church, was then bought, and the captain and his wife once more established a home, from which he is now borne to his final resting place, and from which the loving companion of his sixty-three years of wedlock hopefully and trustingly looks forward to the reuniting of the bond which death has temporarily severed.

Charles Ramsdell and Elizabeth McDonald were united in the holy bond of wedlock on the 30th day of July, 1828, and that tender bond of union was mutually and sacredly preserved by them until the tie was temporarily broken by death. To the couple thus happily united were born eight daughters, all of whom, with the exception of one who died at the age of fourteen years, are now living, all have been married and all have had families, though death has broken the circle of grandchildren.

Mrs. Clark, wife of Capt. Joseph G. Clark of Portland, the eldest daughter, arrived home with her husband just before her father's death. Mrs. Blackwood (M. D.) of Brockton, and Mrs. Clements (M. D.), the youngest daughter, wife of Dr. T. W. Clement of Brookline, Mass., were, at the time of their father's last illness, in the far west, visiting a son of the former in Montana, and were made aware of the captain's critical state by telegraph, but they were unable to return in season to be present at the funeral. The rest of the family are residents of the town, being the wives of Capt. E. H. Sprague, Capt. D. B. Gardner and Postmaster I. H. Leighton, respectively, while their third daughter, Mrs. Blanchard, has made her home with her parents for the last twenty years.

On the evening of the 30th of July, 1878, Capt. and Mrs. Ramsdell, then both hale and hearty, and with bright prospects of completing another quarter century of wedded life, celebrated their golden anniversary, and at which their children, with husbands, grandchildren, friends and neighbors were gathered to assist, all of whom retain most pleasing recollections of that memorable event.

Capt. Ramsdell was long a most successful master of coasting vessels. He was for many years in the employ of the Pembroke Iron Company as master of their vessels. The schooner Vulcan, the first of the company's packets, owned wholly by them and run as a regular liner between this place and Boston and afterward, when others were built, to New York and Sound ports, was built for and commanded by Capt. Ramsdell, who went to Richmond, Me., in the fall of 1854 and brought the new and staunch craft, whose long life for a vessel came to an end on Nantucket, but a few days before her first and long-time master closed his career on earth. In 1860 the captain took charge of the clipper schooner Shooting Star, which had been built for him during the season by Messrs. Jos. Wilder (Jr.) & Co. of this place. In this craft as in others the captain was successful, his long experience and excellent judgment always carrying him through the perils surrounding those who navigate the seas of this rock-bound coast of ours, both in summer's calms and winter's storms, in safety.

Of the many hundreds of souls who have sailed as passengers or crew of the vessels which he has commanded, none have met with fatal mishaps, nor was a vessel of which he had charge lost or seriously damaged; considering his long service, this is a record seldom equaled in the history of a master mariner.

Capt. Ramsdell took charge of the new schooner Pembroke, built at Kennebunk for the iron company, upon her completion in 1867, and sailed her until the trip before her loss at Fox Islands some years later. The last command of Capt. Ramsdell was the famous schooner Venus of the company's line, and from which he retired about 1871. Since that date he has remained ashore, living a quiet and retired life. Some years ago the captain sustained a paralytic shock which, with others since, was the final cause of his death.

Capt. Ramsdell was a long and patient sufferer, never complaining and always considerate of those about him. As a commander, he was liked and respected by his officers and crew, always a genial companion, a loving and kind husband and father, and it can be well said of him, "he had not an enemy in the world" and his end was peace — like the sleep which comes to the tired child after its long day of play amid flowers and sunshine, came the last final sleep to the earth-weary soul, and with hand still clasping that of the patient and loving companion who in storm and sunshine had traveled adown life's rugged way close at his side for more than sixty years, he sank to rest. Brief services befitting the occasion were conducted by Rev. J. C. Chase, pastor of the Baptist church, of which the deceased and his aged widow have been for many years consistent members, were held at his late residence on Saturday afternoon, after which the interment in the family lot at Forest Hill was made."

Mrs. Elizabeth (Mae Donald) Ramsdell followed her husband in a brief period, dying July 17, 1892.

THE CUTTS OF GEORGIA.

---

While preparing this work the compiler has received some facts concerning a branch of the family in Georgia, who do not, directly or indirectly, claim descent from John, Richard or Robert Cutt of New England. They have a tradition that three brothers came to America from England a great many years ago, of whom one was William. This may have been the William who was taxed in Saco, Me., in 1640, and the brothers, Roger and Lawrence, who are mentioned in the introduction. Be this as it may, one William Cutts married a Miss Maddox of Maryland, and settled at or near Raleigh, N. C. He was probably a descendant of the William who first came to the South. They had three if not more sons, of whom there is the following meager record :

1. JOSEPH (Rev.), b. . . . .
2. MAJOR, b. abt. 1762, at or near Raleigh, N. C.
3. SHERROD, b. . . . .

2

Major Cutts married Miss ——— and removed to Georgia. It is believed he settled at or near Warrenton, Warren Co., first, and then went to Pulaski Co. They had :

4. LINDSAY, b. . . . .
5. AMANDA, b. . . . .

6. WM., b. .
7. JERRY, b. .
8. ALLEN SHERROD, b. .

8

Allen Sherrod Cutts married Miss Fannie O. Brown of Oglethorpe, Ga., in 1854, where he had removed. They afterward went to Americus, Ga., where he still lives.

9. CLAUDE SHERROD, b. ; Marshallville, Ga.
10. EARNEST ALLEN, b. ; Savannah, Ga.
11. INEZ MARION, b. ; Americus, Ga.
12. ELDRIDGE HARMON, b. ; Abbeville, Ga.
(attorney-at-law).

Allen Sherrod Cutts distinguished himself in the Mexican war, as well as an artillerist in the Confederate service, and attained to the rank of general. Gen. and Mrs. Cutts had seven children, of whom three died in infancy. His family being widely scattered when he reached man's estate, it prevented his having so complete a knowledge of his ancestry as he might otherwise have done.

JOHN, RICHARD, ROBERT AND ANNE
CUTTS.

Prior to 1646, there emigrated to this country (Strawberry Bank on the Piscataqua) two brothers, John and Richard Cutt, both of whom were in their young manhood. They were joined later by a brother, Robert, and a sister, Anne Cutt, who married John Shipway, a merchant of Strawberry Bank.

Their purpose in coming was undoubtedly to try their fortunes in the new world, and not for religion's sake, like those who settled in the Puritan colonies. They were dissenters, however, from the doctrines and authority of the Church of England, and like those about them, they did not then question the rights that had been acquired by Capt. John Mason and Sir Ferdinando Gorges to the vast territories on either side the Piscataqua, which had been granted to them under the Crown.

Families of the name of Cutts had long held estates in the counties of Essex and Cambridgeshire, but at this late day it has not been possible to determine the exact point in England from which they emigrated, or any direct information as to their parentage. Tradi- tionally, their father was Richard Cutts, Esq., of Grondale Abbey, Arkesden, Essex Co., an adherent of Cromwell, he married a widow by the name of Shelton, who, it is said, by him and her former husband, had twenty-three children, all of whom were living at the same time. Be this as it may, the young men on coming to this country dropped the final letter in their name, calling it Cutt. This may have been an older or indifferent way of spelling it, but was probably due to prudent foresight when every thing about them was so unsettled. When they left England the civil war was in progress, and had the Royal party succeeded, they might have been made to suffer for it.

John and Richard Cutt brought capital with them, for, ere long, they became the leading merchants and ultimately the wealthiest men in the colony.

I. John lived at Portsmouth (then known as Strawberry Bank), the center of the lumber trade of the river; he became a member of the Council for the Government of the Province, with the title of Hon., and in 1679 he was appointed by the Crown its first president. His name was written Cutts in his letters-patent. In Portsmouth their estate covered what is now two-thirds of the compact part of that city. He married Hannah Starr in July, 1662, by whom he had five children, and dying April 5, 1681, he outlived his first wife and married again. In this second marriage we have no date, and the lady's maiden name is still unknown, but it is certain that the widow Ursula Cutt, who was killed by the Indians in July, 1694, was his widow. In his will he gives to his daughters, Hannah and Mary each a silver plate marked T. S. It would be interesting to know where the plates went, for there is no record of their being in existence now.

From the last initial they undoubtedly belonged to the family of his first wife. His will reads as follows :

PRES. JOHN CUTT'S WILL.

I, John Cutt, being in perfect memory, but crazy and infirm in body thro' many weaknesses by reason of age and otherwise, do ordain and declare this to be my last will and testament, hereby revoking all other wills by me formerly made. 1st. I commit my soul unto ye hands of God in Christ Jesus, trusting yt shall be kept by him until that day ; and my body unto a decent buryall in my orchard where I buried my wife and children that are deceased. And I will that there be a wall of lime and stone made about my grave and the rest there already buried, with room convenient for a burying place for the residue of my family relations.

2<sup>d</sup>. I give unto my beloved son, John Cutt, my house and land where I now live, with the orchard, gardens, wharfing, ware-houses and other housing (except what is here after excepted, which I give unto my daughter Hannah,) with all the privileges and appurtenances thereunto belonging, together with my wood-field lying upon the creek behind my house, and adjoining to ye land of John Hunking ; and all my fresh marsh at ye head of the creek next to Richard Commins' marsh, with all my share of ye land bought of Major Waldron and Capt<sup>n</sup>. Lake near Greenland ; as also all the land I bought of Mr. Andrew Wiggin, being 160 pole, by ye water side, (more or less according to bill of sale) and three miles back into ye woods, too gather with ye marsh or meadow abreast of it, and my ten acres of land on ye Grt. Island, (excepting out of it what is hereafter excepted for my daughter Mary,) and my warehouse on Star Island.

3<sup>d</sup>. I give unto my beloved son Samuel Cutt, my house commonly called ye grt. house, with the orchard and field adjoining, (excepting what is hereafter given to his sister Mary) with all ye privileges thereunto belonging, together with my land near ye Pulpit, being 70 pole in breadth, by ye water side, and running up ye whole lenth into ye woods, according to the agreement between me and Bro. Richard Cutt, together with yt half of William Williams' plantation in Oyster River, which I bought of him; and ye farm lying near it, which I bought of Thos. Doughty, with ye fresh and salt marsh belonging to it; and my land at Spruce Creek, bought of Mr. Morgain and his wife and Eph'n Lynn, being 160 acres more or less, and yt part which is mine of ye house and land yt was Mr. Corbett, lying at Kitterey Point; and my one acre of land lying on ye Great Island, with ye warehouse on Smutty Nose Island; as also a parcel of land purchased of Richard Abbott, lying near Mr. Wilson's at Newichawonit.

4th. I give unto my beloved daughter, Hannah Cutt, my new ware-house, with ye wharfing belonging to it, ye land and wharfe so far as ye smith's shop, with the smith's shop and so far as ye high way, with half an acre of land out of ye wind-mill field, at ye corner next Bro. Richard's barn, fronting upon ye highway between yt and ye river, to run up ye lane between Bro. Richard's land and mine for ye depth of it, ye front to be so wide as yt ye double of ye front shall be in ye lenth to make ye half acre.; and ye little field by William Hart's; and all my land in ye long reach, to say 50 Pole breadth which I had at first, with ye addition afterwards laid to it, and ye land I had of Ralph Twamlin per execution; and ye land I had in Dover of Philip Cromwell per execution, which was some time belonging to Joseph Austin, to say eleven acres, with the freehold or commonage belonging to it; as also my farm at Wells, both upland and meadow, with ye housing and priviledges belonging thereunto; and that hundred acres of land which I had of Joseph Beard of Dover, lying in or near Coheco.

5th. I give to my beloved daughter, Mary Cutt, the little field being part of that commonly called ye great field, lying next to ye highway going to ye meeting house, with half an acre of land butting upon ye river on ye one side and ye creek yt goes up by ye great house on ye other, to take in ye point over and above, and so up toward the great house and the river; and a parcel of land out of that ten acres I gave to my son John upon ye Great island, to say that where my frame now lies or formerly did lye, from ye house that was Capt<sup>n</sup>. Pendleton's, to that which was Otho Tuckerman's, and all below ye rock and so down to ye river; and ye land I bought of John Alt, and the land I bought of Will<sup>m</sup> Williams, lying in ye woods at the head of Oyster River; and the 13 acres at Boyling rock, bought of Jaffray Currier; and further, I will that her brother John shall summer two cows for her in his pasture at home freely during her natural life, and because her proportion of land is smaller than what the rest of my children have. I will that she shall pay nothing towards what I hereafter give to her mother out of her proportion of moveables.

6th. As to the remainder of my estate lying in moneys, plate, household goods, wares of any sort, stock, shipping, debts, or any estate what so ever, any wise of right appertaining to me, and not already disposed of, I doe dispose of it as followeth, viz; One third part of the whole to my eldest son, John Cutt, the other two thirds shall be divided into four parts, of which my son Samuel Cutt shall have the one half, the other half to be equally divided between my two daughters, Hannah and Mary Cutt, unto each of which daughters I give beside their portion a silver plate marked T. S.

7th. Provided always yt I give and bequeath unto my beloved wife, Ursula Cutt, the full sum of five hundred pounds, to be taken out of that portion which I have given to my sons, John and Samuel, and to my daughter Hannah, each of them to pay their proportions of the said five hundred pounds, according to ye quantity of goods yt falls to their shares when the whole is summed up and divided to them, and they shall pay it in each species yt they receive their portion in, whether money, goods, shipping or other wise, according to ye value of what they receive—the moveables to be apprized at price currant. Moreover I will that my beloved wife shall have liberty to dwell in my house till my son John come to age or marry, if she continue a widow, whom I request to have respect to my children and be a mother to them. If my son John marry while my wife continues a widow, she shall have ye use of a couple of rooms in ye house, such as shall be judged most convenient by my executors and overseers together; and may be comfortable for her accomodation, or shee shall have liberty to build an house upon that piece of land which she hath lately taken in as an addition to ye orchard, and may therein dwell during her widow-hood; and when she leaves it my son John shall have it with what is built upon it—or she shall have liberty to dwell in ye new ware-house, which shall be fitted up for her till my daughter Hannah comes to make use of it; more over she shall have ye use of that land at ye Pulpit which I have given to my son Samuel, till he come to age, and may improve so much of it as shee sees meet, and build upon it if she pleases, and shall have ye benefit of it dureing her natural life, and then both ye land and all ye improvement and building shall return unto my son Samuel Cutt.

8th. Furthermore, I will that if any of my children die before they come to age or marry, the portion I have given them shall be equally divided between those of them yt survive; & if any of my children die with out issue after marriage, I will yt the housing and land I have given them shall goe to the next kin; and with these provisos it is to be understood that I give the above mentioned houses and lands to my children & their heirs forever — provided also that it is to be judged meet for the peopleing of the place to sell any part of the grt. house field into house lots, & my overseers and execu'rs approve of it, may be done, and ye money for ye land so sold to redound to ye behoofe of the person to whom I have given the lands; and if it may be done for the good of the whole, I advise that by the consent of my exec'rs and overseers, the shipping or part of them, may be sold as soon as may be.

9th. For the good of the town where I dwell, I give and bequeath one hundred pounds towards the erecting of a free school — provided the town shall set it up within seven years after my decease. Unto the church in Portsmouth to which I belong I give fifteen pounds, and thirty pounds to the poor of the town, which said thirty pounds shall be disposed of at the direction of my overseers. Unto ye children of my bro. Robert Cutt I give wt was owing to me from their father, to be equally divided among them. Unto my cousin John Shipway I give ten pounds, and to my servant Bathiah Furber fivety shillings.

10th. Finally, I make my beloved son John & my daughter Hannah, execu'rs to this my last will and testament; and I request and appoint my good friends, Mr. Joshua Moody, Mr. Richard Martin, and Mr. Reuben Hull of Portsm. and Capt. Thos. Brattle of Boston, to be my overseers; and unto ye s'd Moody I give as a legacy fifty pounds, and to the other three overseers thirty pounds apiece, whom I doe earnestly desire to be careful for the concerns of my children, and to order matters so for them as may be to their best behoofe and for the maintaining and promoting love between them; and if there happen any difference among my wife and children about the interpretation of the will, or about any matter referring to these concernments therein, my will is that the partie or parties concerned shall chuse each of them a man to join with the overseers for the decision of any such controversy; and wt they or the major part of them shall determine I will shall be the finall issue of any such matter. The management of my buriall I leave for the prudence of my beloved wife and my overseers; and do oblige my exec'rs with the advice of my overseers to see to the paying of the legacies above mentioned, and discharging of all my just debts and funeral charges out of my estate. In testimony to all and singular ye premises, I set to my hand and seal this 6th day of May, in the year 1680,—by the premises I mean wt. is written on ye side above and on ye other side.

John Cutt. [L. s.]

We whose names are und'r written, saw Mr. John Cutt, Sen'r, set his hand and seal to this instrument, and heard him declare it to be his last will and testam't, this 6th May, 1680.

John Fletcher, Sam'l Keais."

A codicil was attached to this bearing date Jan. 3, 1681, in which he says :

"Upon consideration of ye grt. wasting of my estate by reason of long sickness and other bad Providences attending me I give my beloved wife £400 instead of £500."

The place where he was buried in his orchard was situated on what is now known as Green street in Portsmouth, until very recently, when the land was desired for the railroad, and the remains of those therein buried were removed to the public burying-ground.

The widow of President John Cutt removed to her husband's farm at "the Pulpit" after his death and remained there. Two of her husband's children, John and Hannah, died shortly after her husband, leaving only Mary and Samuel.

In the summer of 1694, thirteen years after her honored husband was removed, Madam Ursula Cutt, as she was then known, was killed by the Indians. The French had instigated such deeds as this, and the event is the most tragic in the family history. The whole is pictured clearly in The Rambles about Portsmouth.—Ramble V.

The royal charter given in 1679, under which President John Cutt served, was the only one ever granted to New Hampshire. He convened the first General Assembly held in the State on the 16th of March. Portsmouth, Dover and Hampton each sent three representatives, and Exeter two. These were all the towns in the State.

II. Richard Cutt had his home at New Castle for a time, which was then one of the most important towns on the coast. He was largely concerned in the extensive fisheries there, and at the Isles of Shoals (seven miles distant). These were second only to those of New Foundland. He built and commanded in 1660 the fort at New Castle, erected on the site of Fort Constitution, for the protection of the harbor. He had the title of Captain. He represented Portsmouth seven times in the General Court between the years 1655 and 1676, the year of his death. During his residence in Portsmouth his home was situated at or in the vicinity of the corner of Market and Deer streets. This house was afterward owned and occupied by his grandson, Lieutenant-Gov. George Vaughan. This was in the immediate vicinity of the home of his brother John, which was situated at or near the corner of Market and Russell streets. Richard Cutt married Eleanor (Leader) (?) and had two daughters, Margaret and Bridget. The first-named married Major William Vaughan, and left numerous descendants. Bridget married Thomas Daniel, and afterward a Mr. Graffort, or Crawford, and left no children. Richard and John Cutt were among the first nine members of the first church in Portsmouth.—Annals of Portsmouth, 1671.

The will of Richard Cutt reads as follows:

RICH. CUTT'S WILL.

I, Richard Cutt, of Portsmouth, in Piscataqua, being in perfect memory and good health, yet considering that man's life is short and his end often times sudden, and not knowing how the Lord may deal with me, I thought meet, as becomes a Christian man, to set my house in order before my death, and do therefore make and appoint this my last will and testament, thereby revoking all wills by [me] formally made.

Imp.— I commit my soul into the hands of God that gave it through Christ Jesus, who I hope hath redeemed it, and believe that he is able to keep what I have committed unto him untill that day. I also committ my body to a decent buriall in the earth, in hope of a joyfull resurrection. My worldly estate I dispose of as followeth :

First.— I give and bequeath unto my beloved wife, Elenor Cutt, my now dwelling house, with the bake house, brew house, barn, and all houseing thereunto belonging ; with the log ware house and wharfing, my stone ware house only excepted ; together with my garden, orchard, and all the land in fence in the home field, adjoining to my house ; as also my corn mill, with my house and barn at the up at the creek, with all the upland and meadow thereunto belonging, so far as home, unto the land which I bought of Hughbertus Mattone, excepting the tan yard and building thereunto belonging, and the land on that side of the floom. All which premisses before mentioned, except what is excepted, I will shall be in the hands and to the use and behoof of my dearly beloved wife, afore-said, during her natural life. And, after her death, I give and bequeath my whole estate, afore said, unto my grandson, Cutt Vaughan, with all the privileges and appurtanances thereunto belonging, to be to him and his heirs forever, and it shall come into his hands att the age of twenty one years. But if he die before that age then I give it to the next heir, male : and if there be no heirs, male, then to the next heir that shall survive. Furthermore I give unto my said wife all my plate, brass, pewter, iron, bedding utensils belonging to the house, together with all my stock of cattle, to be absolutely at her disposal, when and to whom and where she pleases — and the five negro servants.

2<sup>d</sup>. I give to my daughter, Margaret Vaughan, my stone ware house, and that part of the woodfield joining unto that which was John Pickrins, and reaching home to W<sup>m</sup>. Hart's on the west, with my brother, John Cutt, on the west, the way that goes to the Creek on the north, and Christopher Jose, on the east, together with the tan-yard, houseing and the stock therein, and the little field on the south of the floom; always excepting and reserving the high-way as it is now to the farm and to the other mill, which is to be kept free for the use of the mill and the house by it. All which I give to my daughter Margaret and her children. If they fail then to my daughter Bridget and heirs after the decease of my said daughter Margaret.

3<sup>d</sup>. Unto my beloved daughter Bridget and her heirs forever, I give the remainder of the field commonly called the grate field, to say all besides what is already given to her and her husband, and already sould to several persons, to be to her and her heirs forever, with all the privileges and appurtanances thereunto belonging. I give also to my daughter Bridget, that part of the wood field on the south of the highway up to the Creek, as it is now fenced. The other part, between the highway and the creek, her mother shall have liberty to use during her natural life, and that part also shall be Bridget's after her Mother's decease. Likewise I give Bridget, my land in the long reach, next to that which was Capt Pendleton's, being thirty three pole broad front on the river, and so back the whole depth; which land aforesaid shall be Bridget's & her heirs forever. If she die without heirs, then it shall fall to the heirs of her sister Margaret, after the decease of my said daughter Bridget.

4th. I give my son William Vaughan, my land on the Great Island, bought of Mr. Mason, and that acre given me by the town, which was laid out with an acre of Mr. Fryer's. Per mee RICH'D CUTT, [L. s.]

We whose names are under written do attest that Richard Cutt did own this to be his volentary act and deed.

JNO. WICALL, JNO. FLETCHER."

III. ROBERT CUTT came to the Piscataqua plantation several years after his brothers John and Richard. He went to St. Christophers first, where he found his first wife. After her death he went to the Barbadoes. Undoubtedly he had business with his brothers while there, receiving fish and lumber from them, and sending West India goods in return. When he went to Portsmouth he lived awhile at the "Great House." This had been the residence of his brother Richard, and was built by the first settlers as the manor house of John Mason, the grantee of the province, after his colonists established themselves at Strawberry Bank. Robert Cutt went from "the bank" to New Castle, and was probably in business there awhile. From there he moved to Kittery, Maine, across the river, where he established a ship yard, and "built a large number of vessels," according to Brewster.

He married Mary Hoel, the daughter of an English clergyman, for his second wife, a lady of English or Welsh parentage. Whether she became his wife at the Barbadoes or after reaching this country is not certain, as there were a Mr. and Mrs. Hoel living at Kittery many years later. Of the life of Robert Cutt after his settling at Kittery little has been preserved. In common with that of his brothers John and Richard it doubtless had its share of the toils, privations and hardships of those early days. He had a companion and friend in the high born Francis Champernowne, who was his neighbor, and after Robert's death married his widow. In 1665 they were made, by the companies sent by the crown, justices of the peace, with authority to manage jointly for the time all the affairs of that part of the province of Maine. Robert Cutt died at Kittery the last of June, 1674, having made his will but a few days before. In this brief document he leaves his wife and oldest son, Richard, managers of his affairs. His widow married her husband's friend, Francis Champernowne, within two years after her husband's death. Her second husband was the most distinguished man in the colony: a descendant of the house of Plantagenet and of many of the most noble families of the west of England. His father, Arthur Champernowne, was first cousin of Sir Walter Raleigh and Sir Humphrey Gilbert. After her husband (Champernowne) died, in December, 1687, she removed with her daughter, Mrs. Eliot, to South Carolina, where her daughter, Mrs. Screven, lived. She was probably buried there. Of the three brothers, John, Richard and Robert, only the burial place of the first-named is known. Richard was probably buried in Portsmouth, perhaps at "The Point of Graves." Robert may have been buried on his farm in Kittery, but no stones remain to mark these spots. He left an estate valued at £890, including eight negroes.

IV. The only known records of ANNE CUTT, their sister, who married John Shipway, are in the will of Richard Cutt, who mentions her as his sister (and speaks of her husband and son), and in a deed of "1 acre of upland" from John and Richard.* There are interesting records of her husband's and sons' estates in the Probate Records at Exeter, N. H. From the sister not being mentioned in the will of John Cutt, who died in 1681, it is presumed that she and her husband died in the interval between the death of Richard and John.

Second Generation.

VII. HANNAH CUTT, daughter of President John and Hannah (Starr) Cutt, was married about eleven months after her father's death, to Col. Richard Waldron, when she was only fourteen years and six months of age. She died Feb. 14, 1682, on giving birth to a son (Samuel) who lived to be ten months old. Her husband married later Elinor Vaughan, daughter of Wm. and Margaret (Cutt) Vaughn, and own cousin of his first wife.

COL. RICHARD WALDRON, a son of Major Richard Waldron, was born in Dover, N. H., in 1650, and early removed to Portsmouth. He was chosen a representative in the General Assembly in 1691, and a member of the Royal Council in 1692. He was a justice of the Court of Common Pleas from 1702 until 1706; judge of Probate from 1708 until 1730, and held the commission of colonel in the Provincial Militia. He died in Portsmouth, Nov. 3d, 1730, three years after the death of his wife, Mrs. Eleanor (Vaughan) Waldron. He had been married twice, his first wife, Hannah Cutt, a daughter of President John Cutt, was a cousin of his second wife and died in 1682. Her only child died at the age of eleven months. Col. Waldron's mercantile education was received in Charlestown, Mass., under George Willoughby.

VIII. MARY CUTT, youngest daughter of Pres. John and Hannah (Starr) Cutt, married Samuel Penhallow of Portsmouth, in her eighteenth year, July 1, 1687. Her husband was a native of St. Mabyne, where he was born in 1661 (May 30), and came to this country, when he was about twenty-five. His object was to take a course at Harvard College and fit himself for the ministry. He was a pupil of Rev. Charles Morton, whose school near London was broken up by the government, and accompanied his instructor to New England at his request. He soon gave up the idea of becoming a clergyman and removed to Portsmouth when he met his wife and was shortly after married. She had been under the tuition of Rev. Mr. Moody after her father's death, who gave her "a pious and liberal education." After their marriage her husband "accumulated a large estate and lived in a style not inferior to any of the first rank in the government. He was given to hospitality; his house was open to every stranger of distinction who visited the town, and the poor found in him at all times a friend ready to relieve their distress." He filled many important offices during his life, such as Magistrate, one of his Majesty's council, Justice of the Superior Court of Judicature, and Chief Justice of the same court. He was also Treasurer of the province. He was perhaps most distinguished as author of the "History of the Wars of New England with the Eastern Indians," first published in 1726. Very few copies of the work are now in existence, it was republished in "The New Hampshire Historical Collections" in 1824. He died December 2, 1726, nearly fourteen years after his wife, who died February 8, 1713. We quote the following extracts from a manuscript obituary notice of Mrs. Penhallow written by her husband. "She was Pleasant in her family, Affable with her neighbors, Compassionate to the Poor, Courteous unto Strangers, reserved in Company, Expressing herself with a modesty bordering on bashfulness * * * She was excellently well skilled both with the pen and her needle, a good accomptant, and able to take any sermon in short hand as it was delivered. Her attire was always neat and handsome, an utter enemy unto any thing gay or fashionable; as she was not so modish as to be first in fashion, neither was she so singular as to be the last out of it. In her family she was admirable * * * As a Mistress, one who always allowed sufficiency of food and raiment (Prov. 31: 13, 14), was fulfilled in her [‘she wrought willingly in Wool and flax, and brought her food from afar’]—and in sickness she was very tender of any member of her household. The like care she did show to her very negroes, especially in catechising and learning them to read the Bible, and a little time before she was taken ill, was heard to say that she esteemed the souls of her servants next to her own children and was therefore obliged to mind them * * * Her funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Nathaniel Rogers.”

Upon the occasion of her death Cotton Mather, the famous divine, who was an intimate friend of the family, wrote as follows to her husband.

“My very dear friend,

“No words are enough to express my sympathising sorrow for the loss you have sustained, alas! that cannot in this world be repaired, a breach that cannot be healed.

“You have lost an incomparable Consort, an invaluable blessing, one of the finest women in the world, never displeased her husband but once, and that was when she died. May the all sufficient comforter fill you with his good consolations, and help you & both of us to Glorify him in our disconsolate widowhood.

“I am Sir

“Your most affectionate friend & Servant,

“COTTON MATHER.”

The longest and best memoir of Samuel Penhallow was written by Nathaniel Adams, Esq., of Portsmouth,

N. H., and published in vol. 1. of "The Collections of the New Hampshire Historical Society." A very complete account of the Penhallow family will be found in the pamphlet compiled by the late Pearce W. Penhallow and published first in the "New-England Historical and Genealogical Register" for January, 1878, and afterward republished in a revised form in 1885 with additions, etc. We regret we cannot reproduce, on account of lack of space, some of the letters therein given.

IX. SAMUEL CUTT, the youngest son and child of President John and Hannah (Starr) Cutt, is less known from record than any member of his father's family. The date of his birth is unknown, and also the surname of his wife. It is traditional in the family that he married Eleanor Harvey in 1693-4 and died in Oct., 1698, leaving two sons, John and Samuel. As surviving heir of President John Cutt he sells Elihu Gunnison 154 acres at Goose Cove on June 15, 1695.*

His brother John Cutt who died unmarried some years before he did is spoken of in Book IV of York deeds, as "cosson" to Rev. Mr. Hull. Whether there was any relationship or not is not definitely known. In his will he mentions among other items the following of interest. To his son John his "great Silver Salt" and a "seal gold-ring;" to his son Samuel a "Silver Tankard" and "gold ring" besides lands. He was administrator to the estate of his step-mother who was killed by the Indians in 1694. His line in the male descent has, so far as known, entirely died out, and nothing in fact is known of any descendants of his to-day. Of his sons there is even less known than of himself. As we are placing our biographical sketches in order however we will speak of them later.

X. MARGARET CUTT, eldest child and daughter of Richard and Elinor (Leader [?]) Cutt, married William Vaughan, about three years after his arrival in Portsmouth from England. No records of her life are known to be in existence to-day. Her husband was for some years a partner with her father, as may be seen by reading her father's will. She was eighteen years of age at the time of her marriage which occurred eight years before her father's death. Her husband was one of the most eminent men in the town and like Penhallow, Daniel, Waldron and others who intermarried with Cutts descendants was honored alike by young and old. The following brief sketch of his life is condensed from a manuscript by the late Hon. Geo. E. Hodgdon, of Portsmouth, N. H.

X. — Wm Vaughan the eldest son of married Margaret Cutt, a daughter of Richard and Eleanor (Leader [?]) Cutt, of Portsmouth, N. H., December 8, 1668. Eight children were born to them, whose descendants are the only representatives of Richard Cutt and his wife now living (he having no male heirs to continue his name). Young Vaughan came to New England from London about 1664. He was the oldest of three children, and was only about 23 when he left the old country to seek his fortune in a new land. Educated by Sir Josiah Child in London, and coming from a noble lineage (his grandfather was Sir Roger Vaughan), it was but little wonder he made his way up quickly. His name first appears on the records of Portsmouth, N. H., on March 8, 1665-6, when he was elected constable under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts.
George and Mary
(Boxall) Vaughan,

He was made a freeman in 1669, commissioned lieutenant of cavalry in 1672, and promoted to captain in 1680. In all public affairs, local and colonial, he was both active and influential, and for many years one of the most prominent men in the early history of New Hampshire. He was named as one of the royal councillors September 18, 1679, in the charter granted by Charles the Second, constituting New Hampshire a separate province. (Pro. Papers of N. H., 1: 373.) In 1681 he was commissioned by President Waldron major commanding the militia of the province. When this charter was annulled by the appointment of Edward Cranfield as lieutenant-governor and commander-in-chief of New Hampshire, in 1682, Major Vaughan was appointed one of the new council. (Pro. Papers of N. H., 1: 434.) His military commission, however, was revoked, and for non-compliance with Gov. Cranfield's arbitrary measures in 1683, he was deprived of his seat in the council and soon after imprisoned for nine months in the province jail at Great Island, now New Castle. While in prison he sent a petition to the chief justice to be freed from imprisonment. The original, in his own handwriting, is now preserved in the archives of the State of New Hampshire. During his imprisonment Major Vaughan kept a journal of the important events of that period, extracts from which, with corroborative affidavits of prominent citizens, embodied in a letter, he transmitted to Hon. Nathaniel Weare, at that time agent of the province at London. This document is still extant, and fully described the oppressive character of the administration of Gov. Cranfield. It was, doubtless, the basis of action which resulted in the removal from office of that arbitrary governor. Major Vaughan was one of the justices of the Common Pleas from 1680 to 1686: he was reappointed to command the militia in 1690, and under Lieut.-Gov. Usher was reappointed to the council in 1692, of which he continued a member until 1698. From 1696 to 1698 he was treasurer of the province; register of deeds from 1697 to 1702; admitted to the council again 1701, he was president of that body from 1706 to 1715, and for the same period chief justice of the Superior Court. His death occurred in Portsmouth November 12, 1719, when he was 78 years of age; this was twenty-nine years after the death of his wife, who died January 22, 1690, and was interred in the old Point of Graves burial ground in Portsmouth, N. H.

XI. BRIDGET CUTT, second child and daughter of Richard and Eleanor (Leader) Cutt, married Capt.

Tho. Daniel (for whom Daniel street, Portsmouth, was named).

The exact date of her marriage is unknown but, certainly before 1675, as Thomas Daniel is mentioned in the will of Richard Cutt at that time (as the husband of his daughter Bridget). Thomas Daniel was the builder of the old Wentworth House in Daniel street, which was torn<sup>d</sup>down in 1855,* and a resident of that region as early as 1652. He was one of the councillors appointed to serve with President John Cutt in 1679, and a magistrate for Dover and Portsmouth in 1676. His death occurred Nov. 13, 1683. Thirteen months later, Dec. 11, 1684, the widow Bridget Daniel married Thomas Graffort or Crawford, of whom even less is known than of her first husband. She had no children by either. Her second husband died Aug. 6, 1697, and she survived him until May 30, 1709.* In the year 1700 she made a present of the street now known as Daniel street (then Graffort's Lane) to the place of her birth, and a lot of land for a public school-house. The gift was made in the following language :

“For divers good causes and considerations me here-with moving, but more especially for the love and affection I have unto the town of Portsmouth, the place of my birth, I have given unto the said township of Portsmouth forever all the bye way or street from the Fort at Strawberry Bank in said town, taking its beginning from the corner of the house of Ichabod Playsted and so running Easterly nearest to the river of Piscataqua, as it is now being laid out and fenced, being in the broadest part about thirty feet more or less — together also with that highway or lane from my new dwelling house to the house of John Hoddey mariner, being about twenty feet wide, as now laid out and fenced. As also one lot of land in my great field for erecting a school-house and conveniences thereunto for the use of the same, which lot of land is to be forty-six feet front towards the south, and eighty eight feet north in said field abutting upon the lot sold by my late husband, Thomas Graffort, merchant, to the east to John Dennett and others, my land in said field.”

For half a century after Daniel street was opened it bore the name of Graffort's lane.

The town did not improve the lot as directed, but in 1735 sold it to Ebenezer Wentworth in exchange for the lot of land with a small school house upon it, the spot where the present brick school-house in State street now stands.*

Mrs. Graffort was not the only member of her family in that day interested in the then town of Portsmouth and education in general. This may be seen in the will of her father, and her uncle Pres. John Cutt. They were both thoroughly interested in "the college" (Harvard), and gave liberally toward its support. In the will of Mrs. Graffort she mentions a portrait of Capt. Thos. Daniel, her first husband, to be given to his nephew John in London, also a "seale ring," etc. These would be interesting relics now if they could be placed in some historical rooms in Portsmouth or vicinity. Capt. Daniel's death occurred in a time of great mortality, and his death was greatly deplored. Rev. Mr. Moody preached the funeral sermon from II Samuel, 2: 30. "There lacked of David's servants nineteen men and Asahel."*

XII. RICHARD CUTT, son of Robert and Mary (Hoel) Cutt, married Joanna Wills, daughter of Thomas and Lucia (Treworgye) Wills of Kittery, Maine, in 1686. He is supposed, by some, to have been a son of Robert Cutt by his first wife.† There is no definite authority, however, for this statement, and in absence of any such we prefer to take it for granted that he was the oldest son and child of Robert, by his second wife. He had a family of thirteen children, six of whom, at least, were married, and the descendants of his two sons, Richard and Thomas, are the only ones known to day as bearing the Cutts name.

The land now known as "Cutts Island" was originally in the possession of Capt. Francis Champernowne, who married Richard Cutts' mother. It was then called Champernowne's Island. At the decease of Capt. Champernowne he willed to his wife and her daughter by her first husband, Mrs Humphrey Elliot (Elizabeth Cutt) his island home in equal parts. Soon after this it was conveyed to Richard Cutt, Mrs. Mary Champernowne's oldest son, whose descendants have owned the larger part and resided upon it until recently. It is on this island that Champernowne is buried, and members of his wife's family and descendants. Their remains are unmarked, save for a pile of cobble stones over Champernowne's grave, and a slate tablet erected to the memory of Mary Cutt Chauncy, which is spoken of elsewhere. Beside this large island Richard Cutt had acquired a fine estate from his father (Robert<sup>1</sup>) and was a man of wealth and distinction. In the years 1694-5-7-8-9-1700-6 he served as selectman in Kittery. While the date of his death is not definitely known it is presumed to have occurred in 1735-6, as at that time his son Richard dropped the "Jr." after his name.

XIII. ELIZABETH CUTT, daughter of Robert and Mary (Hoel) Cutt, married Humphrey Elliot before July 13, 1685; her step-father, Francis Champernowne, gave at that date a deed of land to "Elizabeth Elliot, daughter of Mary, my beloved wife," etc. Her son, Champernowne Elliot, is mentioned in her step-father's will made Nov. 16, 1686. Her husband is thought to have been a son of Robert Elliot of colonial fame, by his first wife, Margery Batson. Some have doubted this, but it seems to be a reasonable conclusion. Mr. and Mrs. Elliot removed to South Carolina, at or about the same time that their brother-in-law, Rev. Wm. Screven, went on account of persecution. After the death of her husband Mrs. Elliot married again, her second husband being Thomas Witherick. It is not known whether her son Champernowne was married or not. He is mentioned in the 3<sup>d</sup> volume of the Statutes at large of South Carolina, on page 71 as one of the "Inquirers" as to property subject to taxation for that part of Saint Andrew's parish lying south of Ashley river. This was on Feb. 20, 1719, some thirty odd years after his parents' marriage. In 1729 the following is found on South Carolina Records.*

"Elizabeth Witherick, widow
To

Ann Elliott, wife of Thos. Elliott Sr. Deed of Gift 2 July 1729 of 100 acres in Berkely Co. 'in consideration of love I bear my sister said Ann Elliott.'" Whether Thomas Elliott and Humphrey were brothers may be inferred from this document as above expressed. The descendants of Thomas are numerous. Of the family of Humphrey and Elizabeth Elliott very little indeed is known save that they had two sons and perhaps other children. Mrs. Elliott was living as late as 1729 (then Mrs. Witherick) having become a second time a widow. All known descendants are through her son Robert, who is supposed to have been the Robert who married Elizabeth Screven, in which case it was a marriage of cousins, so common at that time. The Elliots of South Carolina and adjacent states have always been a distinguished family, and it is to be hoped that some day some antiquarian can unravel their family line and give the students of family history a volume worthy of their achievements and fame.

XIV. BRIDGET CUTT, second daughter of Robert and Mary (Hoel) Cutt, married July 23, 1674, Rev. William Screven. They resided for many years in Kittery, Me. Her husband was employed in holding religious meetings in his own house, having entered into particular membership with the First Baptist Church in Boston, Mass. He came from Somerton, England, an inland town, 13 miles south of Wells, and 123 miles west of London.

On June 21, 1681, he had from the church in Boston a license to preach, dated June 11, 1681, which read as follows :

“We do appoint, approve and encourage our beloved brother W<sup>m</sup> Screven to exercise the gift in the place where he lives or else where, as the providence of God may cast him, and so the Lord help him to eye his glory in all things and so to walk humbly in the fear of his name.

“Signed by us in behalf of the rest,

“IAASC HUNT,

This caused his persecution at Kittery, even as the Baptists had suffered at Boston. Those who attended his meetings were summoned to answer for their conduct and threatened with a fine of five shillings should they repeat the offense. He continued to preach, however, to all who attended and was apprehended and taken before the general court. On the court records is the following entry :

“W<sup>m</sup> Screven convicted of the contempt of his Majesty and authority and refusing to submit himself to the sentence of the Court, prohibiting his public preaching, and declaring his resolution to persist in it, was made to give bond for his good behavior for the future, and as a delinquent to stand committed until the judgment of this court be fulfilled.”

Again,

“The court having considered the offensive speeches of W<sup>m</sup> Screven, by his rash and inconsiderate words tending to blasphemy do adjudge to the delinquent to pay £10 into the Treasury of the province and the Court forbid him under any pretence to keep any private exercises upon the Lord's day, either in Kittery or in any place within the limits of the Province of Maine. He must observe the public worship of God in our public assemblies, according to the laws here established in the Province upon such penalties as the law requires upon such neglect of the premises."

So far was he from yielding to such sentences that on the 13th of September, he with the rest sent a request to Boston "that Elder Hull and the others might visit and form them into a church which was granted. A covenant was solemnly signed on September 25 1682 by W<sup>m</sup> Screven, Elder Humphrey Churchwood, Deacon Robert Williams, John Morandy, Richard Cutt, Timothy Davis, Leonard Browne, W<sup>m</sup> Adams, Humphrey Ayells, Geo. D. Litten and a number of sisters. They were unable to maintain their ground, however, more than a short time. The congregation and minister were so persecuted that they fled to Cooper River near Charleston So. Carolina. They called the settlement Somerton after the English house of William Screven. They came there late in 1682. The spot is not exactly known. Mr Screven wrote a treatise to his congregation entitled 'An ornament for church members, &c.,' which was printed but no copies are known to exist to-day. While he was visibly declining his old age and retirement were not spent in indolence and ease. He looked only for that rest which is to come. Instead of remaining in town where he might have enjoyed a competency and the society of his numerous family and friends he removed his residence to the head of Winyan Bay, purchased and settled the land on which Georgetown is now built, and preached to those around when his health permitted. He was eminent through his entire life for devoted piety and religious usefulness. His death occurred on October 10th 1713, when he had completed his 84th year (b. in Somerton 1629). His tomb is on Screven street in Georgetown. Of the descendants of the eleven children of Rev. W<sup>m</sup> & Mrs. Bridget (Cutt) Screven no record exists except in two cases. Of these there are so many that had we a like number for all it would be impossible to bring them all in the limits of this volume. The resting place of Mrs. Screven is unknown.”*

XVI. SARAH AND MARY CUTT, youngest daughters of Robert and Mary (Hoel) Cutt, were unmarried when the will of their step-father, Francis Champernowne, was made. They afterward married John Moore and William Bryar. Their descendants were not numerous, and are chiefly resident in the vicinity of Kittery. They were both mentioned in Champernowne's will, as then unmarried.

XVII. ROBERT CUTT (2d), the youngest son and child of Robert and Mary (Hoel) Cutt was born in Kittery, Maine, in 1673. He married Dorcas Hammond, daughter of Major Joseph and Katherine (Frost) Hammond, April 18, 1698. His mother-in-law was a sister of Major Charles Frost, a man of much consideration in the colony and commander-in-chief of the west province of Maine. Robert Cutt 2d lived at the Garrison house at “Whipple's Cove” back of the present navy yard, and directly opposite the Marine Barracks. This was afterward known as the “Whipple Garrison-house," from his son-in-law, who inherited it from him. It is probable that this house was built and occupied by the first Robert Cutt. It is still standing, but has been greatly modernized and altered. He died on the 24th of September, 1735, aged 62. His wife survived him twenty-two years, dying November 17, 1757, in her 83d year, both were buried in Kittery Point churchyard. They left four daughters, of whom Mary, the eldest, was mother of William Whipple, a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Third Generation.

XVIII. JOHN PENHALLOW, 2d son of Samuel and Mary (Cutt) Penhallow, married Elizabeth Butler, widow of John Watts, and daughter of Peter and Elizabeth (Brown) Butler in 1719. He had been in partnership with her husband. Upon the death of his father in 1726 he became the sole executor of his estate. Before this he had served as clerk of the Superior Court in New Hampshire in 1711, and later was with his brother-in-law, James Pemberton, merchant in Boston. After the death of his partner, Watts, he continued the work so well begun by Watts in the settlement of Arrowsic Island.* His principal residence was at Portsmouth, however, after the death of his father. In 1732 he gave a deed to land in Portsmouth which locates the true site there of Graffort's fort. It reads as follows:†

"To all people to whom these psents shal come John Penhallow of Portsmo in N.-Hampse In N. Such records as this are invaluable in establishing the sites of prominent places long since removed. John Penhallow died in 1735.

XXXVI. MARY VAUGHAN, daughter of Wm. and Margaret (Cutt) Vaughan, married Captain Daniel King, Jr., son of Daniel and Tabitha (Walker) King of Lynn, Mass. Her husband was the eldest son of Daniel King and his wife. His father is variously described in the Salem records as "Captain" and "Gentleman." In 1695 Captain Daniel King, Jr., became the administrator of his father's estate, but he died before the administration was completed, and in 1714, his younger brother, Charles King, was made administrator. These administration papers describe him as "Daniel King of Hampshire, deceased, eldest son of Captain Daniel King, late of Lynn, deceased." (Salem Probate Records, old series, Vol. XI, p. 68.)*

They had one son, Wm., who married Abigail Osborne, or Osborne, daughter of James Osborne, M. D. and Abigail (Atkinson) Osborne. Mrs. Osborne, after the death of her husband, Nov. 24, 1712, married Samuel Penhallow in 1714, and had one son Richard, who died unmarried, leaving all his property to his step-sister, Mrs. William King.

XXXVIII. GEORGE VAUGHAN, fourth child of Major Wm. and Margaret (Cutt) Vaughan, graduated from Harvard College in 1696 when he was but twenty years of age, and entered on a mercantile life in Portsmouth. On Dec. 8, 1697, he married Mary Belcher, a daughter of Hon. Andrew and Sarah (Gilbert) Belcher of Boston, Mass. She died on Feb. 3, 1699, three days after the birth of a daughter, who also died.

His second wife was Elizabeth Elliot, the daughter of Hon. Robert and Sarah (Fryer) Elliott, whom he married Jan. 9, 1700. George Vaughan held the commission of colonel in the Provincial forces during Queen Anne's war; was elected in the year 1707 by the General Assembly, agent of the Province in England. When he returned in 1709 his services had been so satisfactory he was immediately re-elected. Upon the accession of George the Second, he was appointed to the office of lieutenant-governor of the Province. His royal commission, dated July 18, 1715, is now in the possession of Col. Richard Cutts Shamon of New York, who is a direct descendant of Gov. Vaughan in the sixth generation. For one year Lieutenant-Governor Vaughan exercised the functions of chief magistrate of the Province. On the 30th day of September, 1717, Governor Vaughan resigned his office, after some months of controversy. This was occasioned by his opinions on some important measures not agreeing fully with those of the General Assembly, especially upon the excise and impost laws. He was succeeded by John Wentworth, a member of the Council. Gov. Vaughan's death occurred in Dec., 1724. He left an estate valued at about £18,590. In his will he leaves to his wife a third of the income of his whole estate, his mansion house, with the furniture therein, and the gardens and orchards belonging thereto, and three acres of land adjoining the same. His children are to be maintained out of his estate until they arrive at the age of twenty years. His daughter, Mrs. Sarah Ross, has specified pieces of land in addition to that already given to her. Her husband, his son-in-law, has one hundred pounds.

Unto each of his maiden daughters he gives five hundred pounds, of which two hundred is to be in land at the *Bank. To his son Elliott the same amount, and all his eastern rights (so-called) at Scarborough and elsewhere. To his son William, houses and lands at the Bank,* and all the residue of his estate, as houses, lands, farms, marshes, mill, tan-yards and streams of water, etc.

His son William is appointed sole executor and the will is signed and sealed on Nov. 1, 1724, one month prior to his death.

XL. MARGARET VAUGHAN, daughter of Major Wm. and Margaret (Cutt) Vaughan, was married twice. Her first husband was Captain JOHN FOYE, of Charlestown, Mass. (His first wife was Sarah Belcher, a sister of Mrs. Mary [Belcher] Vaughan.) Captain Foye died in 1732, and in 1736 she married Hon. CHARLES CHAMBERS, of Charlestown, Mass., who was born in England, in the county of Lincolnshire, in 1660. He was a sea captain and merchant, and possessed of a large estate. He also had been married before (his first wife being Miss Rebecca Pattifield). Charles Chambers was one of His Majesty's Council for the Province of Massachusetts, a judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and a justice of the peace for the county of Middlesex. He died in Charlestown April 27, 1743, aged 83 years. Margaret (Vaughan) Chambers had no children, and removed to Portsmouth after the death of her husband, where she died August 6, 1762. She left no will, and Cutts Shannon, her nephew, was appointed administrator of her estate, which was appraised at £10,972.

XLVI. Major RICHARD CUTTS, son of Richard and Joanna (Wills) Cutt, was born in Kittery, Maine, April 5, 1693, and was a man of great consideration in the Province. He married October 20, 1720, Eunice Curtis, daughter of Joseph and Sarah (Foxwell) Curtis, and a granddaughter of Richard and Sarah (Bonython) Foxwell. On her grandmother Bonython's side she could trace her ancestry back to the fifteenth century. In 1745, at the time of the expedition to Louisburgh, he was commissioned major in Sir William Pepperrell's regiment. He was in the Legislature of Massachusetts as a councillor from 1755 to 1762. He also served as special justice of the Court of Common Pleas, as did his father before him. His residence was on "Cutts Island," where he and his wife entertained in a truly hospitable and elegant manner all the noted men of the day.* While a great many of the stories concerning his style of entertaining are fabulous, it is not to be doubted that he had a luxurious home for that day, and dispensed his entertainment freely. The exact date of his death is unknown. His wife, Eunice, outlived him, dying in South Berwick, Maine (where she is buried), at the advanced age of 97 years. Her head-stone, in the old graveyard there, is inscribed as follows:

"In memory of Eunice, Relict of the Hon. Richard Cutts Esq. late of Kittery who departed this life Mar: 29, 1795 ae. 97."

On the 8th of April, 1724, he was one of those who signed a petition in which is set forth that "A house lately made defenceable near ye head of York River, built by Mr Robert Cutt, for security against the Indians, and the Lt. Gov'r is humbly requested to have six or eight soldiers posted there." Among those who signed it beside himself were Wm. Pepperrell, Jos. Hammond, Jno. Leighton, Nichos. Shapley and Wm. Pepperrell, Jr. He was selectman in Kittery from 1732, with a few exceptions until 1776. He was deacon in the church, and often spoken of in old records as "Deacon Richard Cutts."

XLIX. THOMAS CUTTS, son of Richard and Joanna (Wills) Cutts, married Dorcas Hammond, daughter of Judge Joseph and Hannah (Storer) Hammond, Apr. 23, 1724. He was then in the twenty-fourth year of his age. His wife was a niece of his uncle Robert Cutt, Jr.'s, wife. They built them a house in the "Spruce Creek" district which was standing as late as Aug. 21, 1891 (owned by one of his descendants), and was then destroyed by fire. It had stood the ravages of time for 167 years, and with the exception of the Pepperrell and Sparhawk houses was the oldest in Kittery at that time. There they reared eight children, five of whom were boys, and five lived to marry and settle down in homes of their own near by. The road running through their adjoining places is familiarly known as "the ribbon road." Thomas Cutts was the first deacon of the Congregational church in the middle parish of Kittery, which was built in 1749, and organized in 1750. He outlived half of his children, dying in 1795 at the advanced age of 95 years. His descendants are sometimes spoken of by the family as the "Spruce Creek branch" since he was the first of the name to move into that part of Kittery.

LVII. ROBERT ELLIOT, son of Humphrey and Elizabeth (Cutt) Elliot, married, Feb. 5, 1720-21, his cousin, Elizabeth Screven, who lived but a few years. In Jan., 1725-6, he married Elizabeth Harford. On the 15th of July, 1727, as appears by will of Robert Elliot, on file in the probate judge's office, Charleston, S. C., the following were his children: Artemus, Humphrey, Dorothy and Elizabeth. The first named married Mary Burnham. Humphrey married Catharine Booth, a daughter of Robert and Martha (Elliott) Booth, and granddaughter of William and Esther Elliott of Berkeley.* He speaks also of Elizabeth Witherick (née Cutt) as his "beloved mother." These, so far as they go, are interesting facts in tracing the descent of a family who have held high positions wherever they happened to reside.

LXXXIII. MARY CUTT, daughter of Robert and Dorcas (Hammond) Cutt, married Capt. William Whipple, May 16, 1722, son of Matthew and Joanna (Appleton) Whipple. Her husband was a native of Ipswich, Massachusetts. After his removal to Kittery, Maine, he followed the sea during several years. After the death of his wife's father, Mr. Whipple abandoned his nautical pursuits and resided on the estate in Kittery, inherited by his wife from her father. They had five children, of whom two sons, William, Jr., and Joseph, became distinguished. The former as one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and the other as Collector of Customs in Portsmouth. Their third son died in his young manhood unmarried. He and his parents are buried in the churchyard burying ground at Kittery Point, Maine. Mr. and Mrs. Whipple's oldest daughter married Robert Traill of Boston and was ancestor of the late James Russell Lowell, our famous poet and essayist. Her sister Hannah married Dr. Joshua Brackett, an eminent physician, but left no children. All Mr. and Mrs. Whipple's descendants to-day are in the line of their daughter Mrs. Traill. Captain Whipple was a lineal descendant of Elder John Whipple, who came from Essex, England, before 1639 to Ipswich, Mass.

LXXXIV. KATHARINE CUTT, daughter of Robert and Dorcas (Hammond) Cutt, married Hon. John Moffatt of Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 20, 1723. Her form is the only one of her immediate family that we have extant to-day. The portrait of Mrs. Moffatt, by Symbert, now owned by Alex. H. Ladd, Esq., of Portsmouth, N. H., is, so far as known, the oldest in existence, of any member of the Cutts family.

Her husband, John Moffatt, was born in Dunstar, county of Somerset, England, in 1691. On his removal to this country he became a wealthy merchant in Portsmouth. He was an intimate friend of the artist Smybert, and made the voyage to this country in his company. They were accompanied also by Bishop Berkeley and his family. In Symbert's famous painting of "Bishop Berkeley's family," painted on the voyage, and now preserved in the library of Yale College, Smybert and Moffatt's portraits are included in the family. Smybert painted all Mr. Moffatt's family, and many of the Cutts descendants bearing other names.* In 1762 Mr. Moffatt built the house now standing on Market street, in Portsmouth, and said to be the finest private mansion of colonial times now remaining in New England. Mr. and Mrs. Moffatt had three daughters and one son, who lived to maturity and were united in marriage with members of the Sherburne, Whipple, Knight and Mason families. Mr. Moffatt died in Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 22, 1786, at the advanced age of 94, having outlived his wife seventeen years. Their graves are still to be seen in the North burying-ground of that city.

LXXXV. MEHITABLE CUTT, daughter of Robert and Dorcas (Hammond) Cutt, married Hon. Jotham Odiorne on Dec. 29, 1725. Her husband in early life resided at New Castle and owned and employed a large number of vessels in the fishing business. He afterward became a merchant at Portsmouth and one of the leading men of wealth and business at that place. His house stood on Market square, where now stands the Portsmouth Athenæum. In 1736, he was a member of the General Assembly. In 1746 he became one of the Masonian proprietors, and his interest in the purchase was the source of a large income. Mrs. Mehitable (Cutt) Odiorne was a lady of many accomplishments, and outlived her husband nearly forty years. When she was 80 years old, she wrote the following letter, which gives a fair idea of her business talent.*

Their names are recorded as communicants of the first church in 1746. By will of Jotham Odiorne dated May 19, 1751, he makes over to his wife £10,000, old tenor, besides her dower, to his mother Sarah Odiorne £500, to his sister Ann Packer £100, and the rest of his property to his seven children in equal shares.

LXXXVII. MARY SHIPWAY, daughter of John and Sarah (Frost) Shipway, married Rev. Jeremiah Wise, at the time of his taking charge of the church in South Berwick, Me., or a little later. He was the oldest son of Rev. John and Abigail (—) Wise of Ipswich, Mass. His father was a man eminent in classical and theological attainments, eloquent in oratory, and whose composition was rich in thought, purity, learning and piety. Rev. John Wise was the author in 1717 of "a Vindication of the Government of N. E. Churches," as well as other ecclesiastical works, deservedly standards in church matters.*

Rev. Jeremiah Wise settled in Berwick, Maine, in 1707, when he was twenty-eight years of age. (The town of Kittery was made into two parishes — the upper and the lower — May 8, 1669, and Berwick became the name of the upper parish.) Previous to his coming to Berwick Jeremiah Wise was paid as chaplain for the garrison in Brunswick, York Co., Maine. He was also paid as chaplain of the garrison of Fort Mary in Saco for one year ending Nov. 20, 1704. His ordination as pastor of the church in Berwick* took place on Nov. 20, 1707, seven years after his graduation at Harvard College. He continued in the pastorate there until his death, which took place on Tuesday, January 20, 1756, nearly fifty years after his establishing himself in Berwick. His salary in 1728 was voted by the church to be established at one hundred and fifty pounds per year (£150) "in public bills," so "long as he shall continue in the ministry with us." †

His wife, Mrs. Mary (Shipway) Wise, was a descendant of some of the most distinguished families in New England. Through her father she was the only descendant living, at the time of her marriage, of Anne Cutt (she and her father each being the only child in their generation). Her mother was Sarah Frost, daughter of Hon. Charles and Mary (Bolles) Frost; this is distinctly proved in folio 116 of the "Maine Wills," where Charles Frost makes mention of John Shipway, his son-in-law, in his will dated 1690-91, giving him land and house at Strawberry Bank. He refers also in the same document to his daughter, Sarah Shipway, and his granddaughter, Mary Shipway.

Rev. Jeremiah and Mary (Shipway) Wise had ten, if not more, children, the descendants of the greater part of whom have been traced in this volume, through the kindly assistance of Mr. Pierrepont Wise, of Boston, and Mr. W. Scott Jameson, of Port Gamble, Washington. Up to the time of Mrs. Shipway's marriage, the descendants of Anne Cutt, whose line Mrs. Wise represents in this generation, had been one son and her grand-daughter, Mrs. Wise. From here the line spreads, and it has not been possible to trace all, but enough to give Anne Cutt a fair representation in this volume.

In 1729 Rev. Jeremiah Wise preached in Boston, and the sermon was entitled

Fourth generation.

90. HANNAH PEMBERTON, daughter of James and Hannah (Penhallow) Pemberton, married Benjamin Colman, a merchant of Boston. Her husband was the son of John and Judith (Hobby) Colman. His grandfather, William Colman, came with his son John in "The Arabella" in 1671, from England. William Colman was born and baptized in Satterly, county of Suffolk, England. The Colmans of Suffolk were an old family, and their lineage and armorial bearings are to be found recorded in Burke's County Families. John Colman, the son, married Judith Hobby, a sister of Sir Charles Hobby, and portraits of these three, as well as of members of the Peniberton family, are still extant.

It has been the misfortune of the compiler to be unable, so far, to trace any of the descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Colman, except of their oldest child and daughter, Mary, who married Rev. Ephraim Ward. They had beside this, Sarah, William and Benjamin. It is possible that their daughter, Mrs. Ward, was the only one of the five to marry, but, of this no certain record can be given.

96. SAMUEL PENHALLOW, son of John and Elizabeth (Butler) Penhallow, married Prudence Kneeland of Boston, daughter of John and Prudence Kneeland, Nov. 9, 1749. They lived to an advanced age together in Portsmouth, but left no children. Brewster in his "Rambles" speaks of them as follows:

"Their names were long held in veneration and esteem, as Deacon Penhallow and wife, walking with Christian uprightness, and abundant in good works. The Deacon was also a magistrate and administered justice in his sphere without fear or favor. To quote from a late annalist, 'Justice Penhallow was a strict constructionist, believing with C. J. Jay, that justice should be administered faithfully, impartially, and without delay. He recognized only two distinctions of character of those living under and being entitled to the protection of the laws, viz.: Obedience to, and disobedience of those laws. Neither the possession of wealth nor any adventitious condition of life of the accused could influence the old Deacon.”

Mrs. Prudence Penhallow died July 23, 1810, when she was in her eightieth year. Her husband outlived her three years, dying Oct. 14, 1813, aged ninety-two years.

97. JOHN PENHALLOW, the second son of John and Elizabeth (Butler) Penhallow, married Sarah Wentworth, daughter of Hunking and Elizabeth (Wibird) Wentworth, and had eleven children. His wife's father was uncle of the then royal governor and chairman of the first Committee of Safety.

Mrs. Sarah (Wentworth) Penhallow died June 3, 1773, and John Penhallow married for his second wife Ann Wendell, daughter of Jacob and Sarah (Oliver) Wendell, and granddaughter of Dr. Jas. Oliver of Cambridge. She died Oct. 28, 1808. Left no issue. Her husband survived her but five months, dying in March, 1809.

99. Marianne Dummer eldest child
of John and Elizabeth (Penhallow) Dummer, married Hon. Enoch Bartlett of Haverhill, Mass., in August, 1755. Her husband was a son of Thomas and Sarah (Webster) Bartlett, and this was his second marriage, he having then one son living (Bailey) by his first wife. Mrs. Bartlett had two daughters, one of whom married

Nathaniel Sparhawk, Jr., grandson of General Sir Wm. Pepperrell. The other (Katherine) died unmarried. Mr. Bartlett was a descendant of Richard Bartlett, who came to Newbury in 1635. Mrs. Bartlett had one brother, John, who married and left two daughters, both of whom died unmarried, so that Elizabeth (Penhallow) Dummer's line is carried down through the Bartlett branch.

108. RICHARD WALDRON, JR., a son of Col. Richard and Eleanor (Vaughan) Waldron, was graduated from Harvard College in 1712. In 1718 he married Elizabeth Westbrooke, a daughter of Col. Thos. and Mary (Sherburne Westbrooke. He was a member of the Royal Council for New Hampshire in 1728; secretary of the Province for a long period, including the administration of Governor Belcher; judge of Probate from 1737 to 1742, and the representative in the General Assembly in 1749, of which body he was unanimously chosen speaker.

NOTE.— Nath Fryer came to Boston in 1657. He went to Portsmouth as a merchant later. In 1665 he was elected a representative to the General Court. From 1683 to 1702 served as a councillor of New Hampshire. He was president of the Council in 1695; judge of Probate 1697; selectman in Portsmouth, 1679; chief justice Court Common Pleas, 1693-5; captain of Militia, 1702; and died Aug. 13, 1705.* Of his three children, his daughter Sarah married Hon. Robert Elliott,† and their daughter Elizabeth married Lt.-Gov. Geo. Vaughan. (See 115.)

110. WILLIAM WALDRON, son of Richard and Elinor (Vaughan) Waldron, married Elizabeth Allen of Martha's Vineyard. In addition to the notes already given in reference to his life, we would add the following. It is taken from the third volume of Samuel Sewall's Diary, page 385.

“Monday, 7<sup>2</sup> 11th 1727.

“Feria quinta, 14th.

“Mr. Foxcroft preaches an Excellent Funeral Sermon from Mat. 14: 12 — ‘And his disciples came and took up the body and buried it, and went and told Jesus.’ Between 5 and 6, was buried in his Grand p. Cutt's his Tomb in the Old Burying place: Bearers, Rev. Mr. Sewall, Prince; Mr. Cooper, Foxcroft; Mr. Checkley, Geo; Dr. Mather led the Widow. Richard Cutt Esqr. had a Ring, and pair of Gloves. President and several of the Fellows there. I followed in my Coach with daughter Sewall; Eliza and Mrs. Prince; Madam Foxcroft followed with her coach, and Col. Tailer's Chariot empty. I ordered my coach to turn up Queen St., by which means I stood upon the high ground over against Mr. Foxcroft, and saw the Bearers very plainly enter the burying place and pass on to the Tomb.”

This is a record which Sewall gives of the death and burial of Rev. Mr. Waldron. It is the only account known to be in existence, and also the only one where his place of burial is named. No other papers are known to be in existence which speak of his being buried in a Cutts tomb. Inasmuch as Mr. Sewall says “his Grand p. Cutts' tomb,” and that was an error, it may have been a tomb of some other member of the family. Rev. Mr. Waldron was a great-grandson of Richard Cutt of Portsmouth. It may be that Richard Cutt found his wife in Boston, and that the tomb of her family was called Cutt's. Certain it is there is no record of any Cutts tomb to-day in any of Boston's burial grounds. The Richard Cutt mentioned by Sewall as having a ring and gloves was probably his mother's second cousin, Hon. Richard Cutts of Kittery, Me., who married Eunice Curtis.

116. WILLIAM VAUGHAN, son of Lieutenant-Governor George Vaughan and Elizabeth (Elliott) Vaughan, was graduated from Harvard College in the class of 1722. He was a merchant in his native town for several years after the death of his father and then removed to Damariscotta, Me., and formed a settlement there. He was well qualified for this enterprise and allowed no obstacle to prevent the accomplishment of his views.

It was he who first conceived and planned out the idea of the capture of Louisburg; conferring with Governor Shirley at the time in regard to the matter. He (Vaughan) served as lieut.-col. and filled many prominent positions during the siege.* It seems unfortunate that a combination of circumstances prevented his receiving all the merit that was his due; he died in London in Dec., 1746, a year and a half after the victory. His death was very greatly regretted in England and America by a large circle of friends. He was never married. His property was given chiefly to his mother, and his brother and sister (Eliot and Jane Vaughan).

119. ELIZABETH VAUGHAN, daughter of Lieut.-Gov. Geo. and Elizabeth (Elliott) Vaughan, married William Bennett, a merchant of Portsmouth, N. H. As she grew older her eyesight became wonderfully clear, which in her youth had not been good, and she could read the finest print and sew the finest "Holland" without the use of spectacles. When she was over ninety she translated the first book of Virgil. She died in Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 3, 1800, being the last survivor of the children of Governor Vaughan.*

123. JANE VAUGHAN, daughter of Lieut.-Gov. Geo. and Elizabeth (Elliott) Vaughan, married, 1746, Major James Noble, a wealthy merchant of Boston. Her husband was a major in the 2d Regt. of Mass. Infantry at Louisbourg, 1745. He was one of the owners of the town of Nobleboro, Me., which was named for his family and by whom it was settled. They had no children. He died in 1772, having married a second time in 1768; his second wife survived him.

143. SAMUEL CUTTS, son of Hon. Richard and Eunice (Curtis) Cutts, married Anna Holyoke, daughter of Edward and Margaret (Appleton) Holyoke, in Nov., 1762. His wife's father was then president of Harvard College. Her only brother was the famous Doctor Edward Augustus Holyoke of Salem, Mass., who lived to be six months over one hundred years old. Through her mother, Mrs. Cutts was a descendant of Pres. Rogers of Harvard College, Gov. Thomas Dudley, and others equally distinguished. Through her father she was a descendant of the families of Eliot and Pyncheon, being nearly related to John Eliot, "the Indian Apostle."

Samuel Cutts received an excellent mercantile education in the counting-house of Nathaniel Sparhawk of Kittery, Me.

* Brewster's Rambles about Portsmouth.

His father sent him to Boston and elsewhere on business for him and he was thrown among the foremost men of his day. His wife was related to the Havens of Portsmouth, and it is probable that they first met while she was on a visit to her cousins. After his marriage he built a house on Market street, Portsmouth, next to that now occupied and owned by Mr. Alex. H. Ladd. It was destroyed by fire in 1802, but its counterpart may be seen in Mr. Ladd's house, which was built about the same time. Mr. Cutts was a wealthy merchant; his wharf stood directly opposite his house (where a row of stores now stands). In 1771, '2, '3, '4 and '5 he was one of the selectmen in Portsmouth. In 1774 he was a representative in the General Assembly, and also a member of the First Committee of Safety in N. H., organized that year. He was also one of the Committee of Correspondence in regard to the preventing the importation or sale of tea. In 1776 he was one of the signers of the "Association Test," and a representative in the General Court in 1778. Beside these public positions he was twice deputy to the Provincial Congress; these being the second and third sessions. It was to Mr. Cutts that Paul Revere brought a letter of warning from the Boston Patriots. He was a member of the New Hampshire Assembly in 1776, and one of a committee of three appointed to draw up the New Hampshire Declaration of Independence. Mr. and Mrs. Cutts had five sons and four daughters, of whom two sons and two daughters were married. The portraits of himself and wife, by Blackburn, are still extant in the family of their great-grandson, the late Capt. Edward Holyoke Cutts of Faribault, Minn. His three sons Samuel, Jr., George and Hampden, who all died unmarried, lived to be merchants and have considerable acquaintance with the world at large, through their voyages to different parts of the world. They were all, by a singular coincidence, taken ill while away from home and died in foreign lands.

Hampden was the youngest, being in his twenty-fifth year, and died in Demerara. He had an extensive library for so young a man, and many of the volumes are still in the possession of the descendants of his oldest brother, Edward Cutts. Hon. Samuel Cutts died May 29, 1801, and his widow survived him eleven years, dying in 1812. Of their descendants, through three lives, less than fifty are living to-day, of whom only seven bear the name of Cutts, and of those there are only three male representatives. They are Samuel H., Stephen H., and Charles Cutts of Lewinsville, Va., grandsons and great-grandson respectively of the subject of this brief sketch.

144. EDWARD CUTTS, son of Hon. Richard and Eunice (Curtis) Cutts, married Elizabeth Gerrish, daughter of Col. Timothy and Sarah (Elliott) Gerrish, on Nov. 14, 1758. His wife's brother, Captain Timothy Gerrish, married Joanna Cutts (aunt to Edward Cutts), making his brother-in-law also his uncle-in-law! Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cutts resided in Kittery, Me., in the "Spruce-Creek district." They had two sons and two daughters, who lived to marry, of whom the most conspicuous was the late Edward Cutts, Esq., counsellor-at-law, of Portsmouth, N. H. In 1774, Edward Cutts, Sr., was appointed judge, and thenceforward known as Judge Edward Cutts. In 1775, he was elected representative, and in 1779-1780, councillor. He was judge of Probate from 1795 to 1807; beside these served on the Committee of Safety, and was senator under Massachusetts from 1780-1782.

147. MARY CUTTS, daughter of Hon. Richard and Eunice (Curtis) Cutts, married Charles Chauncy, May 21, 1756.

Her husband was the eldest son and child of Dr. Charles and Elizabeth (Hirst) Chauncy, and a nephew of Lady Pepperrell of Kittery, Me.

Their married life was a brief one; for two years later she was laid in the graveyard on Cutt's Island, within which a year before her infant son had been laid. She was only twenty-four years old, but, if we may judge from the inscription on her stone (the only one now standing), was dearly beloved. It is not possible now to tell the author of the lines so clearly cut upon her stone, but, we give it below that each one may judge for himself as to its merits.

“ In this dark, silent mansion of the dead
 A lovely mother and sweet babe are laid;
 Of every virtue of her sex possessed,
 She charmed the world and made her husband blest.
 Of such a wife, O righteous heaven bereft,
 What joy for me, what joy on earth is left.
 Still from my inmost soul the groans arise,
 Still flow the sorrows ceaseless from my eyes.
 But why these sorrows so profusely shed,
 They may add to, but, ne'er, can raise the dead,
 I soon shall follow the same dreary way
 That leads and opens to courts of day;
 Then clasp them both upon the happy shore
 And bliss shall join nor death shall part us more.

“ Mary Chauncy, wife of Charles Chauncy and daughter of the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Richard Cutts, Esq., died, April 25, 1758, in the 24th year of her age, with her infant son Charles Chauncy.”

The following poem was written upon seeing this grave, and those who are acquainted with the author's writings,* think it one of her best.

“IN KITTERY CHURCHYARD.

“Mary, wife of Charles Chauncy, died April 23<sup>d</sup> 1758, in the 24th year of her age.

“Crushing the scarlet strawberries in the grass,
 I kneel to read the slanting stone; Alas!
 How sharp a sorrow speaks! A hundred years
 And more have vanished, with their smiles and tears
 Since here was laid, upon an April day,
 Sweet Mary Chauncy in the grave away,—
 A hundred years since here her lover stood
 Beside her grave in such despairing mood,
 And yet from out the vanished past I hear
 His cry of anguish sounding deep and clear,
 And all my heart with pity melts, as though
 To-day's bright sun were looking on his woe.
 ‘Of such a wife, O righteous Heaven! bereft,
 What joy for me, what joy on earth is left?
 Still from my inmost soul the groans arise,
 Still flow the sorrows ceaseless from mine eyes.’
 Alas, poor tortured soul! I look away
 From the dark stone,—how brilliant shines the day!
 A low wall, over which the roses shed
 Their perfumed petals, shuts the quiet dead
 Apart a little, and the tiny square
 Stands in the broad and laughing field so fair,
 And gay green vines climb o'er the rough stone-wall
 And all about the wild birds flit and call,
 And but a stone's-throw southward the blue sea
 Rolls sparkling in and sings incessantly.

Lovely as any dream the peaceful place,
 And scarcely changed since on her gentle face
 For the last time on that sad April day
 He gazed, and felt for him, all beauty lay Buried with her forever. Dull to him
 Looked the bright world through eyes with tears so dim!

‘I soon shall follow the same dreary way
 That leads and opens to the courts of day.’
 His only hope! but when slow time had dealt Firmly with him and kindly, and he felt
 The storm and stress of strong and piercing pain
 Yielding at last, and he grew calm again,
 Doubtless he found another mate before
 He followed Mary to the happy shore!
 But none the less his grief appeals to me
 Who sit and listen to the singing sea,
 This matchless summer day, beside the stone
 He made to echo with his bitter moan,
 And in my eyes I feel the foolish tears
 For buried sorrow, dead a hundred years!”

Mr. Chauncy survived his wife more than fifty years. In 1760 he married Joanna Gerrish, daughter of Capt. Timothy and Joanna (Cutts) Gerrish, and cousin to his first wife. They had thirteen children, six of whom lived to marry. From 1775–1777 and in 1780 he was councillor under Massachusetts. He was a graduate of Harvard College in 1748, and in early life was for many years actively engaged in the counting-house of his uncle, Sir. Wm. Pepperrell. He had intended to study for the ministry, but was prevented by ill health. He and his second wife were companions together nearly fifty years. She died three months before he did in 1809, and both were interred in Cotton’s buryingground in Portsmouth, N. H., in which city they were then living. An extended notice of his life will be found in Brewster's Ramble's about Portsmouth, Ramble 257, pages 276 to 281.

148. THOMAS CUTTS, son of Hon. Richard and Eunice (Curtis) Cutts, married Elizabeth, daughter of Dominicus and Rebecca (Smith) Scammon of Saco, Me., in August, 1762. They had eight children, four of whom were sons, and all of them lived to marry. Thomas Cutts left Kittery when he was quite a young man, and went to Saco (then Pepperrellboro) in 1758. He had been before that in the counting-room of Sir Wm. Pepperrell and received a mercantile education there. From Folsom's History of Saco and Biddeford we extract the following from his notice of Colonel Cutts:

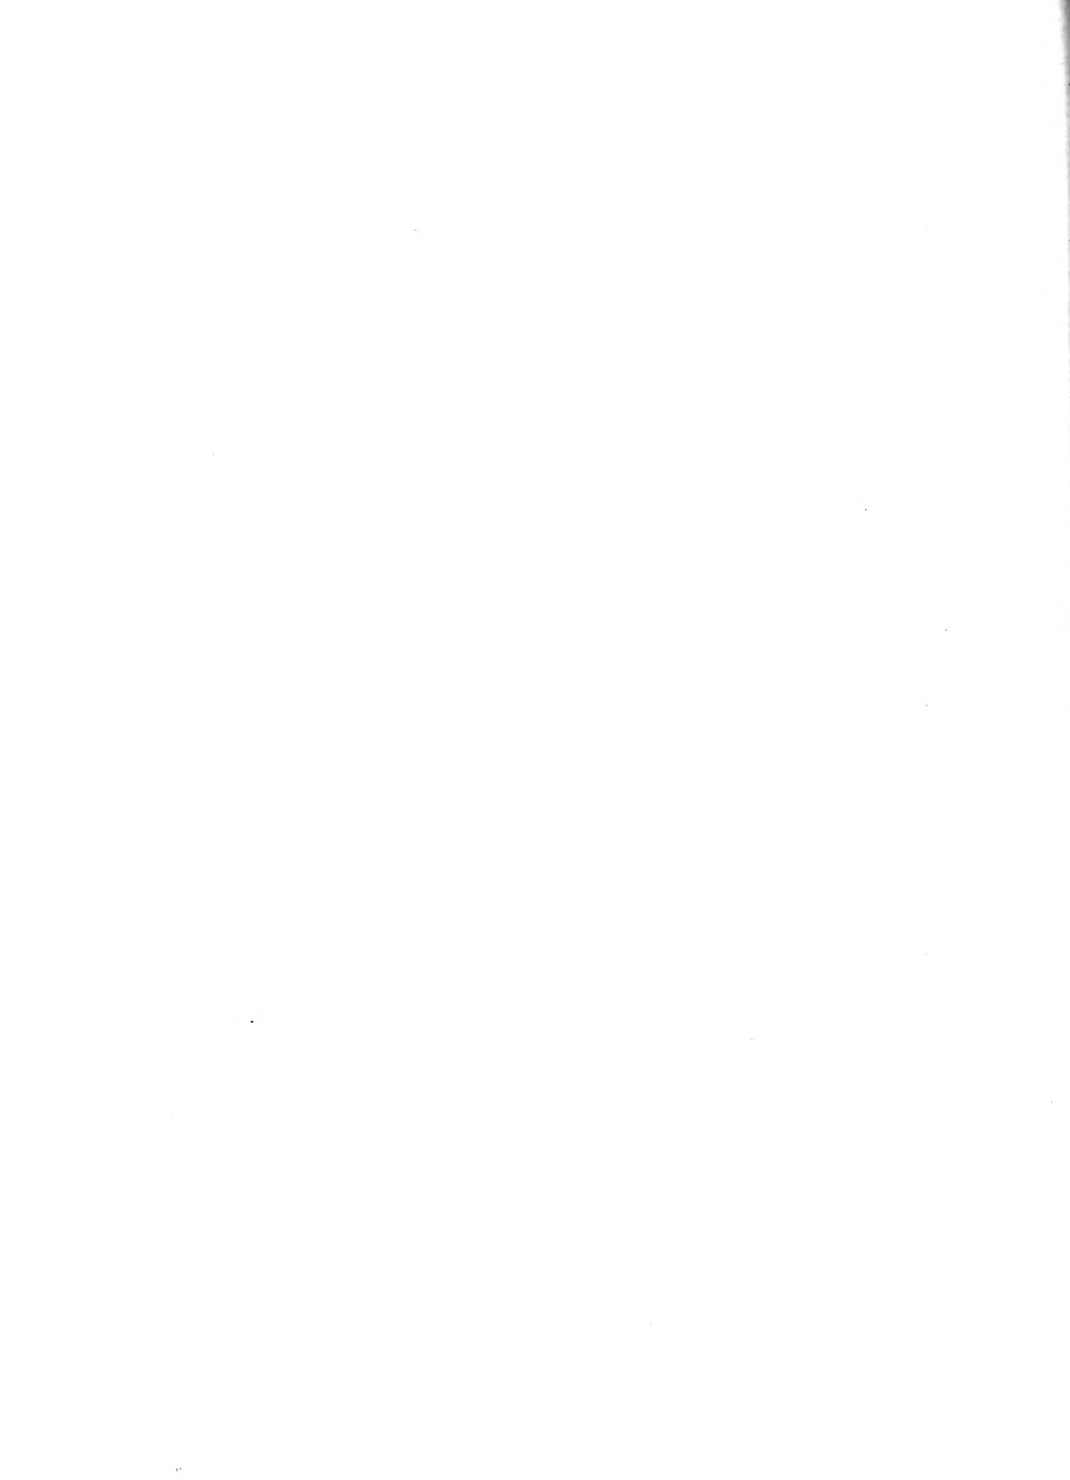

"Having served a clerkship with Pepperrell, he early commenced business, it is said, at Kittery, but proving unfortunate in his first enterprise he left the place and soon after, about 1758, came to this town. He was then but twenty-two years of age with a capital of only $100, for which and to a greater amount he was indebted to his father. He first took a room in Dr. White's house when he began trading on a small scale. By practicing the most rigid economy, even to the preparation of his own food, thereby avoiding the expense of board, and with the aid of an uncommon aptitude for business, Mr. Cutts within a short period enlarged his capital and became engaged in lucrative and extensive transactions. Indian Island at that time was covered with a forest of oaks, and as yet had served little other purpose than to afford a favorite place of resort to the friendly natives during the fishing season.* Mr. Cutts was the first to appreciate the importance of the Island and early resolved to make it the seat of his business. In pursuance of this design in 1759 he purchased a small undivided part for about $90, and soon after built a small house with conveniences for a store on the south-west end of the island, to which he removed. Mr. Cutts began to reap the full advantages of a situation so judiciously chosen. Besides the business of the store, which became greater than any other in that vicinity, he entered into ship-building and navigation, and up to the commencement of the Revolutionary war was engaged in a Timber trade with the British W. I. Islands equally profitable. * * * He continued to occupy his first house about twenty years, in which were born all but one of eight children, five of whom are now living (1830). In 1782 the family removed to the elegant mansion house on the upper part of the island, where Col. Cutts passed the remainder of his life."

Col. Cutts purchased the larger part of this island, at different times, of different parties. It was called Cutts' Island for many years, and afterward called Factory Island. In 1774 the colonel purchased Sir Wm. Pepperrell's half and paid $1,100 for the same. In 1767 he built the first bridge on the west side of Indian Island, in company with several others. He was one of the delegates chosen to the "County Congress" held at Wells on Nov. 15 and 16, 1774.

His nephew, Charles Cutts of Portsmouth, N. H., writes as follows to him of the death of his brother Samuel :

"PORTSMOUTH, May 29, 1801.

"DEAR SIR :

"The disorder which my father laboured under when you saw him last has been rapidly increasing upon him since ; it is now about a fortnight that he has been confined to his chamber since which he has been unable to take scarcely any sustenance and has gradually declined without being afflicted with much pain untill about noon this day when he expired. He retained his senses to the last his remains will be interred on Monday next. When if you can make it convenient to attend the funeral it will give us pleasure to see you and any of your family. I remain with due respect your nephew

“THOMAS CUTTS, Esq.”

Charles Cutts

On January 11, 1803, Mrs. Elizabeth Cutts, wife of Col. Thos. Cutts, died. The following letter of condolence was received by Col. Cutts from his sister-in-law, Mrs. Anna (Holyoke) Cutts, widow of Samuel Cutts.

“PORTSMOUTH, Jan. 24, 1803.

“DEAR SIR:

“The distance between us, obliges me to use my pen in expressing to you how sincerely I sympathize with you and your family, in the loss you have sustained by the death of so amiable a companion and friend, and so tender and affectionate a Parent. Having experienced accumulated distresses of this kind myself, I feel the more interested in your present affliction. Pecuniary losses may be made up by the benevolence of the opulent—therefore they are light when compared to the deprivation we sustain by the death of near and dear friends and connections. These are losses which no earthly friend can replace, but we have an Heavenly one, who we are assured in Infinite wisdom and kindness corrects his dependant creatures, and without whose superintending Providence not a sparrow falls. These are considerations that I hope will support you under your present heavy affliction as they have done under many and great distresses, your friend and sister.

ANNA CUTTS."*

Among his children the most distinguished was Hon. Richard Cutts, who married Anna Payne,† a sister of Dolly Madison, wife of President Madison, and later became second Comptroller of the Treasury.

Col. Cutts outlived his wife eighteen years, dying in 1821, in the 85th year of his age. His descendants are more numerous in the male and female branches than those of any of his brothers.

150. SARAH MITCHELL, daughter of Roger and Sarah (Cutts) Mitchell, and granddaughter of Richard and Joanna (Wills) Cutts, married Jonathan Sayward, Esq., in 1737, who was more familiarly known as Judge Sayward. Her husband was born in York, Nov. 9, 1713, and died there in 1797. He was at one time before the Revolution the richest man in Maine, next to Sir Wm. Pepperrell. "He had the confidence of his townsmen, and was for seventeen years elected to the office of representative to the General Court."‡ He was also a judge of the Court of Common Pleas and judge of Probate for York county. He held these offices when the Revolutionary war broke out. Refusing to sign papers censuring the home government, which he had repeatedly taken an oath to support, he became unpopular among the people. He was master of an armed transport sloop in the Louisburg expedition of 1745, at which time he brought home odd designs in porcelain table-ware, brass fire sets, etc., etc., which are still in the house to which they were brought one hundred and forty-six years ago. He and his wife and daughter (his only child) were painted by Blackburn. These very valuable portraits are still in possession of the family and are among the finest of that artist's works. Mrs. Sarah (Mitchell) Sayward died Sept. 12, 1775, and was interred in the old burial ground at York Village, Me., where nearly twenty-two years later her husband was interred. He was a descendant of Jonathan Sayward who came early from England and settled in York.

† Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Payne had four daughters. The eldest, Dolly, married James Madison. The next, Lucy, married Geo. S. Washington. Anna, the third, Hon. Richard Cutts, and Mary, Jno. G. Jackson. They also had four sons. Mrs. Mary (Coles) Payne was a daughter of Wm. and Lucy (Winston) Coles.

155. ROBERT CUTTS, son of Deacon Thomas and Dorcas (Hammond) Cutts, married Lydia Fernald, Nov. 18, 1758. They resided in Spruce Creek district. In 1761, Thomas Cutts (the Deacon) deeds one hundred acres of land to his son Robert Cutts, for the consideration of four hundred pounds, as follows: * * * "part of my homestead Farm whereon I now dwell," * * * which it seems by this instrument was bounded by land "conveyed to my son Thomas Cutts Jr.;" "by land in possession of Capt. W<sup>m</sup> Wentworth," * * * "by land belonging to the heirs of John Shepard decd. * * * "to the bounds of the town of York." His son, Thos. Cutts, Jr., being requested to "maintain a sufficient gate or Bars near his house to prevent creatures doing damage on the said Robert's land," also out of this hundred acres he excepts & reserves to his "said son Thomas Cutts Jr. his Heirs and assigns a convenient-way or privilege at all times to pass and repass through the above granted land, from the said Thomas Cutts Jr. his house to the public road or highway." He also conveys fifty acres of land in 1790 to Robert, his son, "being that part of my homestead on which I now dwell," he includes in this his "Dwelling-house barn and all other buildings standing on the said fifty acres." These deeds show that at that time there were a number of the family living near each other in the "Spruce Creek district," of whom the first to move so far from their birth-place was Deacon Thomas Cutts. When he went from his home on Cutts Island five miles in the woods, there were a large number of wild animals and the country was wild and unsettled. Robert Cutts' second marriage was with Margery Pepperrell Wentworth, a daughter of Capt. Wm. Wentworth above named, and great grand daughter of Wm. Pepperrell, through his son Andrew. He had three children by his first wife and ten by the second, ten of whom married.

213. MARY WHIPPLE, eldest child and daughter of Captain William and Mary (Cutt) Whipple, married Robert Traill, Sept. 1, 1748. Her husband was a native of the Orkney Islands, and several years an eminent merchaut in Boston. He served as collector of the customs of the port of Portsmouth, in 1769. He was opposed to the Revolution and left the Province at its commencement. He was connected with the British army on Long Island, and in New York for a time, and then went to England. They had four children; three sons and one daughter. Of these, their daughter, Mary, married Keith Spence, Esq., and was grandmother of the late James Russell Lowell. The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Traill, in Portsmouth, was that now standing at the south-west corner of State and Fleet streets (No. 82 State street).

214. WILLIAM WHIPPLE, son of Captain William and Mary (Cutt) Whipple, was born in the "Whipple-Garrison House" in Kittery, Me., situated on Whipple's cove, Jan. 14, 1730-31. "His education was received in one of the public schools of that town, where he was taught reading, writing, arithmetic and navigation. From school he went on board a merchantman and was bred a sailor. Before the age of twenty-one he had the command of a vessel, and in that capacity performed many voyages to Europe and the West-Indies; and, according to the practice which too generally prevailed in those days, was concerned in the slave trade, and imported negroes from Africa into this country. About the year 1759, he left the sea, and engaged in trade in this town, in company with his brother, under the firm-name of William and Joseph Whipple; and continued this connection in business until a short time previous to the Revolutionary war, when he quitted all mercantile engagements. Mr. Whipple was possessed of a strong mind and quick discernment, was easy in his manners, courteous in his deportment, correct in his habits and constant in his friendships. He very early took a decided part in favor of his country in their disputes with Great Britain. His townsmen placed the highest confidence in his patriotism and integrity, and frequently elected him to offices which required firmness and moderation. In the spring of 1775 he was elected a member of Congress, which was to meet at Philadelphia in May, and in the same year was chosen a delegate to the Provincial Congress, which assumed the government after the commencement of hostilities. He was likewise one of the Committee of Safety for the town, and for the State, and was one of the Council under the first form of State government. In 1776, he was again elected a member of Congress and took his seat in the month of February. At this session of that body, the Declaration of Independence was made, and the name of William Whipple, with those of the other illustrious signers of that instrument, will be handed down to posterity with every mark of gratitude and respect. General Whipple was several times called into service with detachments of his brigade to oppose the British troops. He had with him, at the capture of Burgoyne, a valuable negro servant, imported from Africa, named Prince. On his way to the army he said to his servant, "Should we be called into action, I hope you will behave yourself like a man of courage, and fight bravely for your country." Prince replied, "Sir, I have no inducement to fight, but, if I had my liberty, I would endeavor to defend it to the last drop of blood."

The General then said to him, "Prince, you shall have your freedom, from this time you are your own man." He was again elected a member of Congress, took his seat in the month of October, 1778, and was considered very useful and active. After his return from Congress, he was repeatedly chosen as a member of the Legislature of the State. About this time the General began to be troubled with strictures in the breast, which were at times very painful to him. A little exercise would bring on violent palpitations of the heart, which were very distressing. Riding on horseback often produced this effect, and sometimes caused him to faint. This complaint prevented his engaging in the active scenes of life, and induced him to resign his military command. On the 20th of June, 1782, he was appointed a judge of the Superior Court of Judicature. A discerning mind, sound judgment and integrity were deemed essential qualifications, and, these virtues General Whipple possessed. He continued on the bench about three years, but his disorder became more painful to him, and in the fall of 1785, he was obliged to leave the court before the Circuit was completed. He departed this life on the 10th day of November, in the fifty-fifth year of his age. By his special direction to his brother, Dr. Brackett, his body was opened, and it was found that an ossification had taken place in his heart, the valve was united to the aorta, only a small aperture, the size of a large knitting needle, was open, through which all the blood flowed in its circulation, and when any sudden motion gave it new impulse, it produced the palpitation and faintness to which he was liable." *

This sketch of his life, written by the author of the Annals of Portsmouth, is perhaps the most valuable and comprehensive of any yet printed, and we therefore use it, for those who would rather read something already in print, than to have something rewritten for the occasion. He married his cousin, Katherine Moffatt, who with her infant child lies buried in the North burying ground of Portsmouth.

of Newburyport, Mass. (father of Mrs. Edward Cutts). He was in business some years with his famous brother (Wm.), after which he was appointed collector of the port of Portsmouth. His first appointment was by the State of New Hampshire, and after the adoption of the Federal Constitution, by the President of the United States; this office, with but a brief intermission, he held until a short time before his death in 1816. He married Hannah Billings of Boston, in 1762, and was one of those who took part in the early settlement of Coos county, N. H., and was living at Jefferson in 1773. During the Revolution he was captured by the Indians, but escaped. A fine portrait of him is in the possession of Mrs. Dr. Heffenger of Portsmouth (a descendant of his sister, Mrs. Traill). Mrs. Hannah (Billings) Whipple died January 30, 1811, when she was 75 years old, leaving no children. They resided at No. 70 State street, Portsmouth.*

218. ELIZABETH MOFFATT, eldest child and daughter of Hon. John and Katherine (Cutt) Moffatt, married Hon. John Sherburne. They had five children, of whom the youngest child and daughter, Elizabeth, married Hon. John Langdon. Hon. John Sherburne was a son of Hon. Henry Sherburne, one of the King's Council, and chief justice of the Province of New Hampshire from 1735 to 1746. He was also a grandson of Lieutenant-Governor John Wentworth. One of the committee chosen at the time of the act to prevent the importation and sale of tea, he filled that and several other offices with great credit. This included the office of judge of Probate from 1773 until 1776, and councillor until the end of the provincial government. He died March 10, 1797, in his seventy-seventh year.

221. SAMUEL MOFFATT, son of Hon. John and Katherine (Cutt) Moffatt, married Sarah Catherine Mason, February 1, 1764, daughter of Col. John Tufton Mason and his wife, Maria Theresa Van Harts Bergen. They had six children, half of whom were sons, and four of whom married. Their third child, Mary Tufton, married Nathaniel Appleton Haven. When her parents went to Demerara, in 1763, she was left in Portsmouth with her aunt, Mrs. Katherine (Moffatt) Whipple, who adopted her (as they had no children), and she lived with them until she was married. They were living then in the present residence of Alex. H. Ladd, Esq., of Portsmouth, N. H., where General Whipple died, in 1785, one year before his father-in-law, John Moffatt. Samuel Moffatt graduated from Harvard College in 1758. His father-in-law was an officer in the English army, and died at Buckden, Eng., August 8, 1787, aged 74. Colonel Mason was heir by entail of the estates in America granted to his ancestor, John Mason, in 1623, by King James I, embracing what is now the greater part of New Hampshire. John Mason was secretary and president of the company of noble men and gentlemen, known as the "Council of Plymouth," established in 1620, "for the planting and governing of New England in America." He was also at different times governor of Newfoundland, governor of the castle at Portsmouth, England, etc.*

250. MARY PENHALLOW, daughter of John and Sarah (Wentworth) Penhallow, married Daniel Austin, Esq.,

July 22, 1787. He was a son of Timothy Austin and Lydia Waldo. His father was commissary to General Washington while the General remained at Cambridge, and afterward deacon in Dr. Jedediah Morse's church. Daniel Austin was one of ten children, and he in turn had seven children, of whom the late Rev. Daniel Austin was the only son, and he leaving no sons, the line has died out in that branch of the family. Daniel Austin erected the first three-story store in Portsmouth in 1800.* Mrs. Mary (Penhallow) Austin died in 1847, at the advanced age of 87. Her husband died in 1818, aged 65.

252. HUNKING PENHALLOW, son of John and Sarah (Wentworth) Penhallow, married Harriet Pearce. "After passing some years of his early life as a ship-master he left the sea and resided for a while on the island of Tobago, W. I., then returned to Portsmouth, his native town, and for nearly thirty years in business there, was distinguished as a correct, honorable merchant." † The last twelve years of his life, with one exception, he was either a member of the House of Representatives, of the Senate, or of the Council of New Hampshire. He was also several times a selectman and an assessor. During the war with Great Britain he was one of the Committee of Safety; president of the New Hampshire Union Bank eleven years and one of the trustees of the Portsmouth Savings Bank. All these offices were filled with credit to himself, and his name held in high esteem wherever it was known.

and Katherine Dummer,<sup>23</sup> married Hon. Nathaniel Sparhawk, April 26, 1780. He was the son of Col. Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Pepperrell) Sparhawk, and grandson of General Sir William Pepperrell. Elizabeth Bartlett was his second wife; his first being his cousin, Miss Katy Sparhawk. Portraits of himself and his first wife are owned by Edward E. Sparhawk, Esq., of Roxbury, Mass. By this second marriage he had only one child, Mrs. Elizabeth (Bartlett) Sparhawk dying two years after her marriage. Mary Pepperrell Sparhawk, their daughter, was born in Kittery, Me., in the home of her grandparents, the old Sparhawk mansion. Her mother died in Haverhill (at her brother's home), and as Nathaniel Sparhawk spent many years abroad, by request his daughter Mary passed many years with her uncle, Bailey Bartlett, and her aunt, Mrs. Dr. Chas. Jarvis of Boston. In late life, Nathaniel Sparhawk returned to Kittery and died there in 1816.*

275. THOMAS WESTBROOKE WALDRON, son of Richard and Elizabeth (Westbrooke) Waldron, married Constantia Davis, of Dover, N. H., in 1755. He was a man of large property and extensive influence, although not so much in public office as father, grandfather, or great-grandfather. He inherited the homestead, mill-privileges, etc., purchasing the rights of his brother George. The town records show him to have been frequently moderator of Dover town-meetings (1754, 1756, 1757, 1759, 1760, 1762-9, 1771-5); a selectman in 1751, 1753, 1754, 1756, 1758-61; town-clerk from 1771 to 1785; representative in 1756, 1762-5, 1768. He lived on the old property, and in the Waldron house (which is now called, as for many years, the "old boarding house"), and died there April 3, 1785. He was buried in the burial ground west of the Methodist church. After his death, the children were carried to Portsmouth, where they remained for several years. Thomas Westbrooke Waldron made his will Aug. 7, 1779. He owned large quantities of land. In addition to the Dover property he owned lands in Rochester, Barrington, Gilmanton, Grafton county, Lebanon, Chichester, Canaan, Kilkenny and the Globe Tavern, the Square and the Training field in Portsmouth, two mill privileges in Portsmouth, and part of the lower falls. These quantities of real estate were divided among his children, Charles and Daniel inheriting the Dover property. Daniel was the last owner of the extensive Waldron real estate in Dover. It probably came into the family in 1642 when the mill-privilege in the center of Dover was granted to Major Richard Waldron. Upon January 31, 1820, an uninterrupted family ownership of 178 years terminated."*

304. GEORGE KING, son of William and Abigail A. (Oberne) King, married Susanna Sparhawk, May 12, 1771, and died 1786. At the time of the death of Theodore Atkinson in 1799, most of his property went into possession of George King, by bequest, on condition of his changing his name to Atkinson. The request was complied with, and he was afterward known as George King-Atkinson. Theodore Atkinson and George King were cousins, thus the bequest, when Atkinson died leaving no descendants. "Hon. Atkinson was a man of some distinction and occupied the mansion house of Hon. Theodore Atkinson on Court street. He was twice a candidate for governor of New Hampshire, and received nearly enough votes to elect him." His wife was the daughter of Rev. John Sparhawk of Salem, and niece of Col. Nathaniel Sparhawk who married Elizabeth Pepperell. An abstract of her will is given in No. 92 of the "Rambles about Portsmouth." She died without issue in 1796. The bulk of her husband's property was willed to William King, on the condition of adding Atkinson to his name, which he did. The farm now owned by Hon. Frank Jones in North Portsmouth was formerly the property of her husband; it afterward became the property of Col. Geo. K. Sparhawk. Geo. King, before changing his name, was in the Council from 1777 to 1781, and the New Hampshire Senate from 1785 to 1788. He was speaker of the House 1784.

307. WILLIAM KING, son of Wm. and Abigail A. (Oberne) King, married Mary Wendell, daughter of John Wendell and granddaughter of Hon. Jacob Wendell. It was their own son William who inherited the property of his uncle, Geo. King-Atkinson, and married Abigail Pickering, daughter of Hon. John and Abigail (Sheafe) Pickering. Wm., Jr., was solicitor from 1789 to 1803, register of Probate, 1787 to 1819, judge of Superior Court, 1803 to 1805, and attorney-general of New Hampshire. He died in Sept., 1820, and his widow survived him eighteen years.

331. THOMAS SHANNON, son of Cutt and Mary (Vaughan) Shannon, was born in Dover, N. H., and married, Feb. 28, 1771, Lillias Watson. He was an innholder at Dover from 1770 to 1796, and a most highly respected and prominent citizen of that place. In 1785 he was commissioned captain in the 2d Regt. of New Hampshire Militia. Removing to Rochester, N. H., in 1796, he died there on May 29, 1800. His widow married Hon. Jonathan Clarke of Northwood, N. H., and died in that town Apr. 15, 1814.

332. JAMES NOBLE SHANNON, brother of Thomas, was the adopted son of Major James Noble of Boston. He settled in Nova Scotia and there married Chloe Crane, a sister of Col. Jonathan Crane of Horton, N. S. She had married before, but her husband died early. Jas. Noble Shannon was a prominent merchant at Horton and at Parisboro, N. S., where he died Nov. 7, 1822, aged 72 years, leaving no children. He adopted his nephew, James Noble Shannon, son of his brother, Hon. Richard Cutts Shannon, and on his coming of age set him up in business.*

365. JOSEPH TUCKER (Captain) "was an officer in the Continental army of the Revolution, and after the adoption of the Federal Constitution, was collector of the customs for the port of York under Washington. He had two children only — both daughters."†

Captain Tucker was the third son and child of Nicholas Tucker, and married MARY STONE, daughter of Capt. John and Eunice (Raynes) Stone. "On 19th Aug. 1775 he was appointed 2<sup>d</sup> Lieutenant in Capt. Francis Shaw's Co. to be raised in Gouldsborough, Narragagus, Number Four (now Harington) and Pleasant river, for the defence of the sea coast (District of Maine) was commissioned ensign in Brooke's (7th) regiment in 1777, lieutenant 9 Feb. 1780 and was pay master in 1780-83. He there made the acquaintance of Mary, daughter, of the Captain Stone, who was a descendant on her mother's side from Governor Bradstreet of Massachusetts, married her and purchasing the wharf and other property of his father-in-law remained there and established himself in business. He was collector of customs for the Port of York from 1793-1804, Town Treasurer for many years and until his death (about 1812) and influential in town affairs."*

(merchant), son of Samuel and Anna (Holyoke) Cutts, was born in Portsmouth, September, 1763, where he received his early education. He married Apr. 17, 1796, Mary, the daughter of Nathaniel and Abigail (Beck) Carter of Newburyport, Mass. Eight years before, his sister Elizabeth had married his wife's brother, Nath'l Carter, Jr., and thus the acquaintance was brought about with his wife. An excellent miniature of Edward Cutts, painted before his marriage, while in Paris, is now in the family of his granddaughter, the late Mrs. Anna H. (Cutts) Howard. He traveled extensively in early life, as did his brothers, Samuel, George and Hampden, who died unmarried. He was a selectman in Portsmouth in 1802 and '3; a representative in the Legislature in 1807-8, and 1811 and '12; he was again a selectman in 1815-16. In 1817 he was one of the committee appointed to make arrangements for the reception of President Monroe on his visit to Portsmouth. He was at that time collector of internal revenue, and Justice of the Peace and of the Quorum for the county of Rockingham from 1811 to 1821 under Governors John Langdon, John Taylor Gilman and Samuel Bell. He built the house in 1805 on "Christian Shore," in Portsmouth, now owned by the family of the late Hon. James Woodward Emery. Mrs. Cutts was a descendant through her paternal grandmother, Hannah (Gookin) Carter, of the far-famed Anne Hutchinson and Major-General Daniel Gookin, tracing her ancestry back in the Gookin line, to Thos. Gookin of Ripple Court, Kent, and through his wife Catherine Denne to Robert de Dene, whose family was established in Kent antecedently to the Conquest. She was a woman of great native ability and much beloved in her family, and by a large circle of friends.

In 1818 a bank was established in Portsmouth, and the following copy from a framed document, in the directors' room of The Portsmouth Savings Bank, tells the story.

Hon. Edward Cutts was president of the institution. He died on Sept. 20, 1824. His funeral sermon was preached from the 23d chapter Numbers, verse 10th, "Let me die the death of the righteous," the officiating clergyman being Rev. Dr. Parker, of Portsmouth, N. H. His wife removed to Vermont a few years later and died there at the residence of her son, Hon. Hampden Cutts, in 1840, at the age of 74.

388. ELIZA EPPES CUTTS, eldest daughter of Hon. Samuel and Anna (Holyoke) Cutts, married Nathaniel Carter, Jr., of Newburyport, Mass., son of Nathaniel and Abigail (Beck) Carter, in May, 1788. She was considered a remarkable woman for her day in her education and natural ability. She was familiar with and could converse in several languages. She interpreted the public documents that passed between the two nations when Count De Estange, commander of the French fleet, was in America. She could converse freely in French with any one. It is related of her that when in late life she was living in Amherst, Mass., and boarding at the hotel, she had the following experience with two young men who took dinner at the same table with her. They began making observations on each at the table in French, and when they reached her they began to comment on her; she immediately answered them in French; they then began the same in Italian, in which language

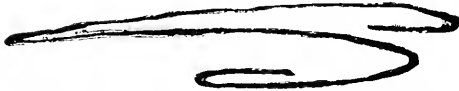

she answered them; after which they tried Spanish and she answered them in that. They then arose and left the table, with their dinner uncompleted, evidently much discomfited. When her brother Charles Cutts was in the Senate and with one other of the New England delegation voted for war, the public intended when they came home to insult them. The morning he was to arrive in the stage at Newburyport, his sister, Mrs. Carter, went to the livery-stable and ordered a fast horse and carriage and went out three or four miles to meet the stage. When she met it, he joined her and they went on a cross road to Amesbury and on five or six miles, when the stage then overtook them and he got aboard and went on to Portsmouth. The large crowd at the hotel when the stage arrived found he was not aboard, they went home sorely disappointed, having been duped by a smart woman. Mrs. Carter died in Kennebunk on the 23d of June, 1857, in her ninety-third year.

398. MARY CUTT, daughter of Judge Edward and Elizabeth (Gerrish) Cutt, married Rev. Asa Piper of Wakefield, N. H., April 6, 1788. Her husband was a Congregational clergyman, he graduated from Harvard College in 1778, studied divinity and was ordained September 22, 1785. He was pastor of the same church for nearly fifty years, only having a colleague the last seven years of his pastorate. His relation with the church where he was first ordained terminated by his death, May 17, 1835. Rev. Albert H. Thompson says of him, in his "One Hundredth Anniversary of the Organization of First Church, and Ordination of the First Settled Town Minister of Wakefield, N. H.": "He was of staunch English stock, a good scholar, and a priest of the Most High God. He was the first pastor of this church and stands at the head of the line in time and talent." Physically he was well developed and about six feet high, a man of force of character and deep piety, with sound judgment and correct opinions on the great questions of his day. He was beloved by all who knew him, both by the members of his church and society and the towns-people generally.*

son of Colonel
Thomas and Elizabeth
(Scammon)
Cutts, married

March 31, 1804, Anna Payne, daughter of John and Mary (Coles) Payne. The following obituary notice of him was from the pen of the Hon. John Quincy Adams:

"The memory of the late Hon. Richard Cutts of Washington, D. C., deserves from his friends and countrymen a more detailed notice of his career of life than the mere notice of the day and hour of his decease. He has been for many years distinguished by the confidence of his country in many stations of honor and of trust, legislative and executive, and has faithfully performed all their duties. Born on the 28th of June, 1771, at Cutt's Island, Saco, (the residence of his father, the late Thomas Cutts, Esq.,) in the province, or district of Maine, then constituting a part of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, descended from one of the most ancient families in New England, and inheriting that inextinguishable love of freedom, the envied, yet venerated peculiar characteristic of the English Pilgrims, he received his early education at Harvard University, at which institution he was graduated in 1790 in the 20th year of his age. Most of the sons of that nursing mother of the liberal Arts, pass from her intellectual tuition to the profounder studies of one or other of the learned professions ; yet, among the most illustrious of her children, she takes pride in counting no inconsiderable number of eminent artists, skillful navigators, and enterprising merchants. Following the bent of his inclinations, having studied law, Mr. Cutts engaged extensively in the pursuits of navigation and commerce, though at the same time deeply involved in the vicissitudes and ardently devoted to the duties of political life. At an early period of his career after the close of his studies at the University, he visited Europe, and added to his stock of knowledge, acquired at the seat of science, the stores of experimental instruction acquirable only in the schools of observation and inquisitive travel.

“On his return from Europe, after serving two successive years as a member of the General Court of Massachusetts, he was, at the age of 29, in 1800, elected by the people of his district a member of the House of Representatives of the United States. He took his seat in the House on the 7th December, 1801, commencing with the administration of Jefferson, and through six successive congresses, constantly approved by the continued confidence of his constituents, he gave a firm, efficient and undeviating support to that administration, and to that of his successor, Mr. Madison, until the close of his first term, on the 3<sup>d</sup> of March, 1813, having patriotically sustained by his votes, non-importation, non-intercourse, the embargo, and finally war, as measures called for by the honor and interest of the nation, although ruinous to his private fortune, since the greater part of his property consisted of ships, the loss of which, if captured or destroyed, might, as thus it did, reduce him to poverty. On the 3<sup>d</sup> of

June of that year he was appointed Superintendent General of Military Supplies, "an office created by the act of 3rd March, 1813, the better to provide for the supplies of the army of the United States, and for the accountability of persons intrusted with the same, an office of high trust and responsibility, but, the functions of which were only required during the continuance of the war. The office was accordingly abolished by the act of 3rd March, 1817, to provide for the prompt settlement of public accounts. By the same act, the office of Second Comptroller of the Treasury was created, to which Mr. Cutts was immediately appointed by the President, James Monroe, and which he held until 1829; since which time he has resided in the city of Washington, in the retirement of private life, until his death, April 7, 1845. In the year 1804, Mr. Cutts was united in marriage with Miss Anna Payne, a sister of Mrs. Madison, and every way worthy of the same parentage. By her he had six children, four sons and two daughters. She died in 1832."

418. SARAH CUTTS, daughter of Colonel Thomas and Elizabeth (Scammon) Cutts, married Thomas Gilbert Thornton, M. D., Nov. 26, 1793. Her husband was son of Timothy and Eunice (Brown) Thornton, and descended maternally from James and Sarah (Cogswell Brown of Ipswich, Mass. On the paternal side he was a descendant of Rev. Thomas Thornton, early of Yarmouth, Mass.

He studied medicine with Dr. Joseph Manning, and attended early lectures at Harvard College. Settling in Saco, Me., he became an eminent physician; he was also for a long time interested in commercial pursuits in Saco, and one of the most successful merchants in Maine. Upon Thomas Jefferson's accession to the Presidency, he was appointed U. S. marshal for the District of Maine, and held the same under Madison and Monroe. About 1802-3 he almost entirely relinquished medical practice. He was largely the means of founding the academy, which was afterward called "Thornton Academy," as a compliment to him for his interest. He was also president of the Saco bank and a long time leader in the Democratic party.

420. SARAH SAYWARD, daughter of Judge Jonathan and Sarah (Mitchell) Sayward, married Nathaniel Barrell, son of John and Ruth (Green) Barrell, Nov. 23, 1758. Her husband was first a clerk in her father's store, and afterward rose to prominence in the affairs of the Province. "During the excitement for volunteers to capture Quebec, Mr. Barrell accepted an ensign's commission, and was in the assault and capture of the city, and was promoted to be captain, for gallantry. After the fall of Quebec Mr. Barrell went to England and was at the coronation of George III, in 1760. By this monarch he was appointed councillor for New Hampshire, and served at the council board, at Portsmouth, N. H., with both Governors Wentworth. He too adhered to his oath and became a Tory."* Mr. and Mrs. Barrell had eight children, of whom the eldest was the famous Madam Wood of later days (Sarah Sayward Barrell).

466. JOANNA CHAUNCY, daughter of Charles and Joanna (Gerrish) Chauncy, married Edward Parry, Esq., an eminent merchant of Portsmouth, N. H., in 1796. They had one son, who died in infancy, and Mrs. Parry only lived four years after her marriage. Edward Parry figured conspicuously in 1774 in the matter of the non-importation and taxation of tea. He was the one to whom it was consigned, but "publicly declared he would not accept of the consignment thereof, nor would he have any thing to do therewith for sale under the present circumstance." *

499. GENERAL JAMES SCREVEN, son of James and Mary Hyrne (Smith) Screven, married Mary Odingsell, daughter of Charles Odingsell, Esq., of Edistoe Island in South Carolina. He was one of a committee of thirty who were appointed at a meeting of the inhabitants of Georgia, at the Exchange in Savannah, July 27, 1774, to draw up resolutions not to use or import British manufactures till America shall be restored to her constitutional rights. This committee reported the resolutions at a subsequent meeting, August 10th. The resolutions and report will be found in "Peter Force's American Archives," 4th series, vol. 1, pp. 638 and 700. James Screven was subsequently a member of the "Provincial Congress" of Georgia, which met July 4, 1775, and was at the head of the eleven delegates from St. John's parish.

517. MARY WHIPPLE TRAILL, daughter of Robert and Mary (Whipple) Traill, married Keith Spence, son of James and Janet (Blaw) Spence, of Kirkwell, Orkney. He was a merchant, and settled in Portsmouth. From 1800 to 1805 he was purser of the United States Navy. He was purser of the frigate Philadelphia when that vessel was captured by the Tripolitans, October 31, 1803, and was a prisoner in Tripoli during the attack of August 7, 1804, in which his son distinguished himself, as already mentioned. He is spoken of as "a gentleman justly held in high estimation for his probity, intelligence and nice sense of honor," and also as "the bosom friend and mentor of Decatur." He died suddenly in New Orleans, and was buried there.*

521. John Samuel Sherburne, son of Hon. John and Elizabeth (Moffatt) Sherburne was a member of the first and second Congress at Philadelphia, Pa., U. S. district attorney and judge of the Court of Admiralty. At nineteen he was aid-de-camp to General Sullivan.

523. ELIZABETH SHERBURNE, daughter of Hon. John and Elizabeth (Moffatt) Sherburne, married Hon. John Langdon February 3, 1776-7, son of John and Mary (Hall) Langdon. "John Langdon early took a decidedly American stand. In 1775 and 1776 he was a delegate to the general Congress. He also took command of an independent company of cadets, and was present at Burgoyne's surrender. He served in Rhode Island with a detachment of his company, and was present when General Sullivan brought off the American troops. He was a member and speaker of the Provincial Legislature in 1776 and 1777. When the news of the fall of Ticonderoga reached Exeter, where the Legislature was then in session, John Langdon, the speaker, seeing the public credit exhausted and his compatriots discouraged, rose and said:

"I have a thousand dollars in hard money; I will pledge my plate for three thousand more. I have seventy hogsheads of Tobago rum, which will be sold for the most they will bring. They are at the service of the State. If we succeed in defending our firesides and our homes, I may be remunerated ; if we do not, then the property will be of no value to me. Our friend Stark, who so nobly maintained the honor of our State at Bunker Hill, may safely be entrusted with the honor of the enterprise, and we will check the progress of Burgoyne.'

"It is well known that from this noble offer sprang the gallant little army of Stark's, that covered itself with glory at Bennington.

"John Langdon was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1776, but resigned the next year. In 1778 he was agent under Congress for building ships of war, and was continental agent for supplying materials for the America, 74. In 1779 he was president of the New Hampshire convention for regulating the currency, and from 1777 to 1782 was speaker of the New Hampshire House of Representatives ; in 1780 he was a commissioner to raise men and procure provisions for the army, and June 30, 1783, was again elected delegate to Congress. In 1784 and 1785 he was a member of the New Hampshire Senate, and in the latter year president of the State. In 1788 he was delegate to the convention which framed the Constitution of the United States. In March, 1788, he was elected representative in the New Hampshire Legislature, and speaker in the House, but took the office of governor, to which he was simultaneously chosen. In November, 1788, he was elected a member of the Senate of the United States, became the first presiding officer of that body, and was re-elected senator in 1794. Later in life he was nominated for Vice-President, but declined on account of age. From 1801 to 1805 he was representative in the New Hampshire Legislature, in 1804 and 1805 was speaker, and from 1805 to 1808, and 1810 and 1811 was governor. The degree of LL. D. was given him by Dartmouth College in 1805. He died in Portsmouth, Sept. 18, 1819.*

Governor and Mrs. Langdon's only child married Thomas Elwyn, Esq., and their descendants have upheld the honor of the family name on both sides.

525. CATHERINE ELIZABETH MOFFATT, daughter of Samuel and Sarah Catherine (Mason) Moffatt, married Nicholas Rousselet, March 26, 1787. He "was a merchant, and a gentleman of some taste for the curiosities of nature and art. He changed the name of Mulberry lane to Demerara street, and over the store he built on that street, he commenced the Portsmouth Museum, where he displayed all the curiosities he could gather. * * * Nothing was added to the Museum after the proprietor left for Demerara in July, 1800, where he soon after died."* The document which we herewith give shows that Mrs. Rousselet's toilet case was not neglected by her husband.

528. MARY TUFTON MOFFATT, daughter of Samuel and Sarah Catherine (Mason) Moffatt, in 1786 married Nathaniel Appleton Haven. He was graduated from Harvard College in 1779. Was seven years a physician and then a merchant.

562. CAPTAIN DANIEL WISE, son of James and Elizabeth (Malcolm) Wise, was employed as a boy in Portsmouth, N. H., and worked on the sloop-of-war Ranger, built for our government by John Paul Jones. He shipped on her and was with Paul Jones during his daring and celebrated cruise in her in the British Channel; took part in every naval engagement Paul Jones fought in her. After Jones was promoted to the command of the frigate Bon Homme Richard, he remained on the Ranger which was then placed in command of Capt. Elijah Hall of Portsmouth, N. H., who had previously been Jones' first lieutenant in the Ranger, and completed the cruise. He received a pension for his services, and finally settled down in Kennebunk, Me., where he married Hannah Hubbard, and engaged largely and successfully in the West India trade, sending out lumber, staves, etc., in his own vessels, and importing molasses, rum and coffee.

The French captured three brigs of each of which he was half owner, with specie on board for which his estate has claims on our government (for spoiliations prior to 1800) amounting to nearly $30,000. This he willed to his son George Wise. He died May 6, 1843, aged 82 years and 4 months; his wife survived him nine years, dying in Oct., 1852, when 83 years of age. They had seven children, all but one of whom lived to marry, and four of them were sons.

Mary Lepporell Sparhawk daughter of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Bartlett) Sparhawk, married, March 14, 1808, Hon. William Jarvis, son of Dr. Charles and Mary (Clapham) Jarvis of Boston, Mass. Her aunt, Mary Pepperrell Sparhawk, married Dr. Charles Jarvis, some years after the death of his first wife, and it was in visiting her aunt that she became acquainted with her husband, Mr. Jarvis. He was educated in Boston, at Bordentown, N. J., Academy, and at Philadelphia; he also served a mercantile apprenticeship in Norfolk county, Va., as clerk and book-keeper. From the age of 21 to 26 he did business on Long Wharf in Boston, and by energy, intelligence and industry accumulated a considerable fortune for those days. It was at about this time (1796) that he was thinking of settling in a home of his own, but, becoming embarrassed, by the reason of the failure of a friend in New York, for whom he had indorsed largely, he was led to relinquish his business in Boston and go to sea. In the next five years, as supercargo, captain and part owner of a ship, he acquired a sufficient sum to relieve him of all pecuniary embarrassments.

He sold his vessel and cargo at Cadiz and returned to Boston. On his arrival home he found a commission, from President Jefferson, awaiting him as consul and charge to Lisbon. His qualifications for the place had attracted the attention of President Jefferson, and Mr. Jarvis accepted the position. During these intervening years his engagement with Miss Sparhawk remained unbroken, and, finding after his first term had elapsed that he was desired to continue in his position, he persuaded Miss Sparhawk to go to him. This she did, after some waiting, and accompanied by her cousin, John Sparhawk, who acted as her escort, she made the voyage to her lover. The ship was unable to put in at Lisbon and so went to Cadiz. There Mr. Jarvis met his affianced bride, and they were married at the house of the American consul at that port (Mr. Hackley). Their oldest daughter was born at Lisbon, and they remained there some time. During the time Mr. Jarvis occupied this position he was continually exercising his skill and tact for the interests of his country. He was instrumental in bringing about a change in the quarantine regulations of the kingdom, and was the means of introducing the Spanish Merino sheep into this country. Of these he bought 3,500, and sent them to America. He returned with his wife and daughter to the United States in 1810. In 1811 their second child was born, while Mrs. Jarvis was in Haverhill, Mass. The return to the bleaker climate of New England seemed to affect her health and she did not long survive the birth of this daughter, dying in Haverill, Mass., in 1811, where she was buried. Her husband purchased a large tract of land on the Connecticut river, in Vermont, known as Weathersfield Bow, and became a farmer. He gave considerable attention to cattle of all kinds. He imported some fine stock from Holland. He often communicated the results of his experience to the newspapers, and did much in that way to advance the interests of stock raising and agriculture. He also interested himself in American manufactures and would not buy any articles of foreign make. He was an extensive reader, with a retentive memory and quick perception of the right or wrong of the many subjects in which he was interested. He married a second time, Miss Ann Bailey Bartlett, a cousin of his first wife, by whom he had a large family of children. He died in Oct., 1859, when he was in his ninetieth year. It has been said of him: "He was one of the great men of the age in which he lived, and though for many years he had declined all public honors, his superiority was felt and acknowledged in his by no means circumscribed circle of acquaintance and nowhere more than in the midst of his own family who rise up to call him blessed." His oldest daughter, Mary Pepperrell Sparhawk Jarvis, after his death published a volume entitled "Life and Times of William Jarvis."

637. BENJAMIN GUILD, who married Elizabeth Quincy, was a son of Benj. and Abigail (Graves) Guild. He graduated from Harvard College in 1769; from 1776 to 1780 he was a tutor there. A member of The American Academy of Arts and Science, and for some time a preacher, he subsequently opened a book store on Cornhill (now Washington street). His son BENJ. GUILD, JR., who married Eliza Eliot, was fitted for college at Hingham Academy and graduated at Harvard College, 1804. He studied law with Hon. Wm. Prescott, and was afterward his partner. He was for thirty years a member of the Massachusetts Society for the Promotion of Agriculture and its recording secretary. Several reports of that society were written by him.

SAMUEL ELIOT GUILD, a son of Benjamin and Eliza (Eliot) Guild, married Elizabeth H. Rice. He graduated with distinction in 1839 from Harvard College, and studied law with Wm. Gray and Theophilus Parsons. His studies were completed at the Law School in Cambridge. He was admitted to the Suffolk Bar in 1841. He achieved considerable success as Chamber counsel, conveyancer and manager of property.

CHARLES ELIOT GUILD, son of Benj. and Eliza (Eliot) Guild, married Mary L. Eliot, about eight years after his graduation from Harvard College in 1846. He was for some time president of the American Insurance Company and is now agent for the London, Liverpool and Globe Insurance Company in Boston.

EDWARD CHIPMAN GUILD, son of Benj. and Eliza (Eliot) Guild, graduated from Harvard College in 1853. He became a Unitarian clergyman and was settled for some time at Ithaca, N. Y. He married Miss Emma Cadwallader and is now settled in Brunswick, Me.

671. ELIZABETH BENNETT WINGATE, daughter of Capt. Moses and Elizabeth (Bennett) Wingate, married John Parker, a surveyor in Portsmouth, N. H., and son of Rev. Noah Parker, Oct., 1786. Their son,

WM. BENNETT PARKER, married Elizabeth Marshall, and was for many years a police justice in that city. Their eldest son, JOHN PIERCE PARKER, entered the U. S. Navy as midshipman, April 1, 1828; promoted to passed midshipman, June 14, 1834; lieut., Feb. 25, 1841; reserved lieut., Sept. 13, 1855, and died June 7, 1860.

WM. ALBERT PARKER, the third child of Wm. B. and Elizabeth (Marshall) Parker, entered the U. S. Military Academy as cadet, where he remained one year; was appointed midshipman in U. S. Navy, July 3, 1832. He passed through the grades of passed midshipman, lieutenant, commander, and retired captain; served through the Mexican war with marked distinction; was in continuous service in the war of the Rebellion from Sept., 1861, to Jan., 1865. He died unmarried at East Boston, Mass., Oct. 24, 1882.

702. "RICHARD CUTTS SHANNON, M. D., of Dover, N. H., a graduate of Harvard College, 1795, studied medicine with Dr. Jacob Kittredge of that place and obtained a commission of surgeon in the U. S. Navy. He was not long in the service, having settled in Saco in the fall of 1800. For a period of nearly twenty-eight years Dr. Shannon was the principal physician of the town. He died suddenly Apr. 19, 1828, universally lamented. At the time of his decease Dr. Shannon was deacon of the first church, of which he had been for many years an exemplary and justly esteemed member."—From "Folsom's Hist. Saco and Biddeford," p. 304.

812. NANCY GALE TUCKER, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Stone) Tucker, married Wm. Pitt Preble, Esq., Her husband was a native of York, Me., and his father, Esaias, was a captain in the Revolution and a member of the Convention to ratify the Constitution of Massachusetts. Wm. P. Preble was born in Scotland Parish, Nov. 27, 1783; fitted for college under Rev. Roswell Messenger, then settled in town, and for many years known as the blind preacher; graduated from Harvard in 1806. He was tutor in mathematics there from 1809 to 1811. He studied law and first commenced practice in York. He removed to Alfred and was appointed county attorney. In 1813 he removed to Saco. In 1814 President Madison appointed him U. S. attorney for Maine. In Jan., 1818, he removed to Portland, Me., and in 1820 was judge of the Superior Court. He sat upon the bench until 1828. President Jackson appointed him minister plenipotentiary to The Hague.

Hamden Cutts

son of Edward and Mary (Carter) Cutts, was born in Portsmouth, N. H., August 3, 1803. His early education was acquired at the schools in that city, after which he attended Phillip's Exeter Academy. He was graduated from Harvard College in the class of 1823. He studied law under Hon. Jeremiah Mason, and in September, 1829, he married Miss Mary Pepperrell Sparhawk Jarvis, eldest daughter and child of Hon. Wm. and Mary P. (Sparhawk) Jarvis, of Weathersfield, Vt. His wife was a descendant in the seventh generation of President John Cutt, and he in the sixth generation of Robert Cutt, the youngest of the three brothers who came to New England. They lived for three years in Portsmouth, and kept house on Christian Shore, in the house built by Mr. Cutts' father, after which, at the urgent solicitation of Mrs. Cutts' father, Hon. Wm. Jarvis, they removed to North Hartland, Vt., near Mr. Jarvis.

Beside the practice of his profession, Mr. Cutts was for a year editor of a paper in Portsmouth called "The Signs of the Times." Mr. and Mrs. Cutts had nine children, of whom four lived to marry, one son and three daughters; and three of these left descendants. During Mr. Cutts' life in Vermont he was elected representative to the State Legislature, and served some years as probate judge. He was also elected vice-president for Vermont of the New England Hist. Gen. Society, in which position he continued until his death. In 1860 they removed to Brattleboro, Vt., where they built them a large and comfortable home, but retained their place in North Hartland. In their removal to Vermont, Mr. Cutts' mother and only remaining sister, Miss Mary Cutts, went with them. Mr. Cutts died very suddenly in March, 1875, while he was in North Hartland, and was buried there, beside his children and mother.

927. RICHARD DOMINICUS CUTTS, son of Hon. Richard and Anna (Payne) Cutts, was born in 1817. He was educated for a surveyor. In 1865 he attained to the rank of brevet brigadier-general, on the staff of General Henry Halleck. In 1855 he was United States surveyor. He was one of the United States commissioners to the Vienna International Exposition in 1873, and in 1883 attended the Geodesic Conference in Rome. At time of his death (Dec. 13, 1883) he was first assistant superintendent of the coast survey.

932. SARAH CUTTS THORNTON, daughter of Thomas Gilbert and Sarah (Cutts) Thornton, married Moses Emery, November 7, 1823. Her husband was a descendant of Moses Emery, who came from Newbury, Mass., to Minot, Androscoggin county, Me. Mr. Emery pursued his education by himself (not without some opposition from his father), and unaided by teachers, during what leisure he had; he gained a good knowledge of Virgil, Sallust and Cicero. In the fall of 1813 he attended Bridgton Academy, and pursued the study of Greek, and the following winter taught school for a brief period. During this experience he saved forty dollars, besides paying all expenses. In 1814 he passed an examination for entrance to Bowdoin College successfully. His father still opposing his entrance, he was sent to an uncle in New York, who got him a position as cashier. In August, 1815, having reached his majority, he returned to Brunswick and passed an examination for entrance to the sophomore class of Bowdoin College. During his college course he was teacher at Brunswick, in the Buckfield High School and at Hebron Academy. He excelled in mathematics and the languages, and was wont to review them in later life, even as late as his eighty-fourth year. Mr. Emery was admitted to the bar in 1821. After his marriage he settled in Saco, and continued his practice there during the remainder of his life. Later in life he turned over his court practice to his son, Geo. Addison Emery, and confined himself to office work. He was known to the bar of York county, Me., and adjoining counties as a lawyer of sound discretion, safe counselor, and honest in the trial of a cause. He resided in Saco sixty-four years, during which time his name was familiar both as a citizen and a lawyer, as a man esteemed for his integrity of purpose, his honesty of conviction, and for his strong will power to carry forward whatever he conceived to be right to a successful issue. He was a member of the county committee for twenty years, and of the State committee four years. In 1836-37 he was a member of the Legislature, and died May 12, 1881, aged 86 years. Mrs. S. C. T. Emery died Jan. 15, 1892.

933. ANNA PAYNE THORNTON married Governor John Fairfield, Sept. 5, 1825. Her husband was born in Saco, Jan. 13, 1797, and was always a resident of that city. He was distinguished by an ardent love of knowledge, an active mind and great strength of purpose. On arriving at manhood he devoted himself to the study of law; at the bar he soon acquired such a reputation that in June, 1832, he was appointed by the executive of the State, reporter of the decisions of the Supreme Judicial Court. He served as representative to Congress in 1835, and was re-elected in 1837. In 1838 he was elected governor of Maine, and three times after served in that capacity. He resigned the governorship in 1843 to accept a seat in the United States Senate, made vacant by the resignation of Hon.

Ruel Williams. In 1845 he received a re-election to the Senate for the term of six years. On Dec. 24, 1847, his death occurred, when suffering from the effects of a surgical operation. His death was universally lamented, and his devotion to his country and state received the highest eoniums from those in power. Mr. and Mrs. Fairfield had nine children, of whom five lived to marry and raise families.

1041. REUBEN CUTTS, son of Charles and Abigail (Hurd) Cutts, married Mehitable E. Cheney, daughter of Richard Cheney of Londonderry, N. H., Feb. 14, 1828. In the fall of 1829 they bought a farm of sixty acres in Newport, N. H., on the Valley road on East mountain. They added to the place until they owned 225 acres. They celebrated both the fiftieth and sixtieth anniversaries of their marriage, and nine months after the last celebration, in Nov. (16th), 1888, the union was broken by Mrs. Cutts' death. She was buried in the village cemetery of Newport. She had passed her 85th birthday but two months before her death, having seen six of her eight children live to grow up and marry and settle down on farms in their native town. Death had not entered her family for more than 58 years before she was taken. Reuben Cutts outlived his wife, passing away in March, 1890, aged 88. He had seen six generations in his family, ranging from his grandfather, Joseph Cutts, to his own great-grandson. He left five children, fifteen grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

1129. GEORGE FOLLANSBEE JACKSON, M. D., son of Elijah and Abigail (Cutts) Jackson, was born in Pittston, Me., August, 1827. After receiving his education in that city, he taught school in East Pittston for two years.

Studying medicine with Dr. G. G. Palmer in 1848, he went to the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, Pa., and graduated from there in 1853. In 1854, he married Miss Rachel Stevens Dearborn, and removed to New York city. In the latter place he has been sanitary inspector of the Board of Health; surgeon of the Metropolitan police; member of the Academy of Medicine of New York and of the County Medical Society.

Dr. and Mrs. Jackson had two children, of whom the youngest, their only daughter, married Wm. Henry Bishop, the novelist, in 1886.

1191. CAPTAIN ROBERT TRAILL SPENCE, son of Keith and Mary Whipple (Traill) Spence, married Mary Clare Carroll, daughter of Nicholas Carroll, Esq., of Maryland. Captain Spence's commission in the U. S. Navy as midshipman was dated May 15, 1800. His commission as lieutenant was signed by Thomas Jefferson. His commission as master commandant was signed July 24, 1813, by James Madison, and also as captain on Feb. 28, 1815. Before his death, which occurred at his residence near Baltimore, Md., Sept. 26, 1826, he had been appointed to command the West India Squadron. When Captain Spence was midshipman, and serving under Decatur on the captured Tripolitan gun-boat "No. 8," she was blown up by a hot shot sent through her magazine. After the explosion with her stern blown to pieces and under water, he kept on loading the long 26-pounder gun forward, fired it, and with his crew of eleven survivors gave three cheers and went down into the water, but was rescued. His father was at that time prisoner in Tripoli. Captain Spence was highly commended by Tom. Rogers for his promptness and ingenuity in laying obstructions in the way of the British fleet off Baltimore, in September, 1814.* In 1822 as senior American naval officer in the West Indies, he issued a protest against Francisco Morales, who had threatened death to Americans in the Spanish main. This was an act that was as much applauded at home as it was effective at the time and place of danger. In Africa he built the first fort at Mesurado in Liberia. His sons, Hon. Carroll Spence, and Chas. Lowell Stewart Spence, have been respectively, minister to Turkey under President Pierce, and sec'y of the legation, and envoy to Persia.

Seventh Generation.

1362. JOHN NELSON BORLAND, M. D., son of John and Rebecca Nelson (Woolsey) Borland, of Boston, Mass., married Miss Madeline Gibson. The following notice of Dr. Borland appeared in "The Transcript" of Boston after his death.

"There are none of Dr. Borland's contemporaries who will not cordially remember the commanding figure, the genial presence and the attractive personality of this once conspicuous practitioner, hospital physician, and active participant in the medical and social life of Boston, greatly esteemed by professional associates, and by the large circle of friends with whom he was a popular and influential companion. Cultivated by education and travel, and experienced in knowledge of the world, simplicity and purity none the less stamped his ways and conduct with honesty and directness of purpose. Amiability, tact, methodical habits and quickness of observation adapted him readily to the varied requirements of medical practice. He carried his love of domestic life and his gentleness of manner into sick rooms with winning and felicitous address. His sympathizing attentions, devoid of affectation, and not wanting in manly dignity, were of almost womanly tenderness. * * * He won the hearts of all classes — was gratefully looked up to by the poor, and endeared to old and young, in the families of appreciative clients, for his devoted personal ministrations in time of sickness and distress. Dr. Borland's fondness for the country, and his sportsman's love of nature, led him to relinquish his profession to remove to New London, Conn., and to devote his time to agriculture, and to the rearing of thoroughbred stock. * * * An abounding hospitality gave to the delightful surroundings of his house and picturesque farm, an attraction not lightly forgotten by those who were privileged guests beneath his ample roof. * * * He has left behind him the memory of an honored member of the medical profession, and of a high-minded gentleman."

His death occurred at the residence of his sister, No. 255 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass., on August 10th, 1890. His funeral took place at Trinity Church at noon on August 13th.

1757. BENJAMIN PENHALLOW SHILLABER, son of William and Sarah Leonard (Sawyer) Shillaber, was born in Portsmouth, N. H., July 12, 1814. After a district school education he entered a printing office in 1830. In 1832 he went to Boston where he remained five years. He went for a year to British Guiana in 1837. In 1840 he became editor of "The Boston Post," which position he held for the next ten years. Just before assuming that responsible position he married Miss Ann Tappan de Rochemont, they had eight children, of whom five were girls, and five lived to the age of maturity. Of these there was but one son (William) who lived to marry, who now lives with his family in New York city.

From 1851 to 1853 he was editor of a comic paper called "The Carpet Bag." In 1856 he became editor of "The Saturday Evening Gazette" in Boston, and continued to edit it until 1866. His first published volume was entitled, "Rhymes with Reason and without," and was published in 1853. The work from which he received the nom de plume of Mrs. Partington was published in 1854, and entitled "The Life and Sayings of Mrs. Partington;" from this volume he received a world-wide reputation. It was followed by "Knitting-Work" in 1857; "Partingtonian Patchwork," in 1873; "Lines in Pleasant Places" (1875); "Ike Partington Juvenile Series;" "Ike and His Friends" (1879); "Cruises with Captain Bob" (1881); and "The Double Runner Club" (1882). In 1882 he published a volume entitled "Wide-swath," embracing "Lines in Pleasant Places," and other poems. He has also contributed a large number of sketches to various periodicals during the interims between each published volume with great success. While he is best known as one of the foremost of American humorists, he is equally at home in prose and poetry. Some of his most beautiful lines have been written about his native town, of which the following quotation is an excellent example:

"'Twas a brave old spot, and deep was the shade
By the fast locked boughs of the elm tree made,
Where the sun scarce looked with his fiery eye,
As he coursed through the burning summer sky,
Where breezes e'er fanned the heat-flushed cheek,
Old Frenchman's Lane, up by Islington Creek.

Host lovely the spot, yet dark was the tale
That made the red lips of boyhood pale,
Of the Frenchman's doom and the bitter strife,
Of the blood stained sward and the gleaming knife,
Of the gory rock set the wrong to speak,
In Frenchman's Lane, up by Islington Creek."

The latter years of Mr. Shillaber were spent in his quiet cosy home in Chelsea, Mass. From there he sent out many cheering letters to his friends, despite the fact that he was himself more or less of an invalid. His letters were perhaps the most accurate portrayals of the man himself of any of his writings. Occasionally he went back to his boy-hood's home, sometimes to visit his children, but most often he was by his own fireside, under the loving care of his daughter, Miss Caroline Wheeler Shillaber, who was his constant companion after the death of his wife. In November, 1890, he was taken with his last illness and passed away most peacefully on the 25th of that month. The funeral services were held at the Church of the Redeemer in Chelsea, November 28. An eloquent address was delivered by Prof. C. H. Leonard, D. D., of Tuft's College, and appropriate music and scriptures were accompanied by prayers. The services at the grave were in charge of "The Robert Lark Lodge," A. F. & A. M. of Chelsea. It is too soon to place an estimate on Mr. Shillaber's genius and his rank in American literature, but those who knew the man well could say reverently, "I thank my God on every remembrance of thee."

1781. EDWARD HOLYOKE CUTTS, son of Hon. Hampden and Mary P. S. (Jarvis) Cutts, was born in Portsmouth, N. H., at the residence of his grandfather, Edward Cutts, Esq., on Christian Shore. His boyhood days, however, were largely passed in Vermont, where his father and mother removed when he was an infant. His early education, aside from that received in his own home from the family governess, was acquired at Thetford Academy in Thetford, Vt., and at the military school at Norwich, Vt. He was fitted for a civil engineer, and followed it for several years. When quite a young man he went as far west as Wisconsin, and soon after to Minnesota, on an exploring expedition. On January 10, 1855, he married Hannah Sherwood, a daughter of Reuben and Catherine (McDonald) Sherwood. After service in the late war, where he acquired his commission as captain, and during which time his family resided in Vermont, they removed to Minnesota, and witnessed the growth of Faribault (their home) from a small settlement to a large city. At the time of his death (Oct. 11, 1887) he was Vice-President of The Old Settlers' Association of Rice county, Minn. In February, 1892, his only remaining son, Hampden, was taken away by death, at the early age of twenty-one years, thus leaving that branch of the family without a representative in the male line, Cutts. Of Capt. and Mrs. Cutts' nine children only four daughters survive.

1783. ANNA HOLYOKE CUTTS, daughter of Hon. Hampden and Mary P. S. (Jarvis) Cutts, was born in the northern village of the township of Hartland, Vt., on the sixtieth anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill. The farm to which her parents had removed was one formerly owned by Governor Paul Spooner of Vermont; from the front of the house seven townships could be seen, and a blending of mountain and meadow. The great wealth of natural beauty surrounding the place impressed itself on the young girl, and her love for nature was always one of the most beautiful phases of her life. Her earliest experience at boarding school was in 1849, at Miss Peabody's in Hanover, N. H. Prior to this she had received tuition at home from the family governess or at public school. Her earliest literary effort was penned when but ten years of age, and still remains in the possession of her family. It is a little book with blue paper covers, and contains the memoir of a lady living near by, whose death had recently occurred. There is ample evidence in the book of the talent shown by her in later years. Her talents in music and art were shown at an early period in her life, as well as in literature and the sciences. Both vocal and instrumental music, and drawing and painting were readily acquired by her. In instrumental music she preferred the violin, though never so proficient upon that as upon the piano. Between the eighteenth and twentieth years of her life she composed in both prose and poetry as well as in instrumental music. She studied Latin and French, and her acquirements in the higher and lower English branches were thorough, her favorite studies being rhetoric and history. In 1855 she graduated from the academy in Thetford, Vt., then under the principalship of Prof. Hiram Orcutt. Before she graduated she had taught in a neighboring district school, and evinced the thorough fitting she had for the position. In the fall of 1856 she went to Warsaw, Va., to teach, and remained there one year. On her return she became interested in the movement to purchase Mount Vernon, and when her mother was appointed vice-regent for Vermont, her daughter Anna acted as her secretary.

Her first prose sketch appeared in print at about that time, being entitled "Mount Vernon," and signed with the nom de plume of "Ernest." It was printed in the "Vermont Chronicle." In 1859, when visiting at Hanover, N. H., she became acquainted with Mr. Abel Trumbull Howard, then a student at Dartmouth College, and a native of West Hartford, Vt. They were engaged in the following year, and married (after the removal of Judge and Mrs. Cutts to Brattleboro) in Aug., 1861. The earlier part of their married life Mr. and Mrs. Howard taught in Walpole, N. H., Brattleboro, Vt., Brooklyn, N. Y., and Chester, N. J. After this they were the principals of a large boarding school for seven years in Matawan, N. J. In the fall of 1873, they went to Brooklyn, N. Y., which was thereafter their home.

During this period she wrote but little; not until after her last residence in Brooklyn did she commence to publish her writing extensively. Nearly two thirds of Mrs. Howard's married life was passed in Brooklyn, and there, beside her literary work, she found many outlets for her energies. Chief among these were "The W. C. T. U.," "The Woman's Suffrage Association," "The Brooklyn Woman's Indian Association," and "The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

"The Nursery," "The Christian at Work," "The Woman's Journal," "The Household," and "Our Home Magazine," were among the papers for which she wrote most frequently.

Chief among her few essays were: "Power of Silence" (1875) and "Simplicity True Beauty" (1878), "The Dignity of Silence" (1888) and "Semper Idem" (1889). These have been pronounced excellent by competent critics and highly commended.

During the last few years of her life she took up musical composition again and composed several hymns, the words for which she also wrote. Four of these were published in "Woman in Sacred Song." A numbered record of her published contributions in poetry and prose places it at about 400, most of which were written during the last sixteen years of her life. She wrote over the nom de plumes, at various times, of "Ernest," "Sana," "Luxdux," "Edith Elliott" and "Anna Holyoke." Beside these, she used "A. H. C.," "A. H. H.," "A. H.," "A. H. C. H.," and "Anna Holyoke Howard." Mr. and Mrs. Howard had seven children, of whom four were daughters (only one of the daughters living beyond infancy). Their oldest child and son is the author of "Life and Times of General John Wolcott Phelps;" and beside belonging to several different historical societies has done something in the line of genealogical writing, of which the "Cutts Genealogy" is the largest and most extensive. Mrs. Howard was a woman of deep sympathy and tenderness, and her children were ever the object of her care and affection. The work of her oldest child received great impetus from her kindly criticisms and affectionate interest. Though never strong, Mrs. Howard became more and more subject to illness as she grew older, and on June 27th, 1889, she was attacked by a violent paroxysm of pain, which proved to be peritonitis, and the following evening, June 28th, she was at rest. Her body was laid in the beautiful cemetery at Brattleboro, Vt., on July 1st, and those who knew her best believe that she has learned the depth of beauty in her own true lines:

"Henceforth there is laid up for thee
Love, joy and immortality."

1957. LIEUT.-COL. JAMES MADISON CUTTS, JR., son of James Madison and Ellen (O'Neale) Cutts, was born

Oct. 20, 1837, in Washington, D. C., and educated as a lawyer.

His military record is best shown in the following report, No. 3343 in the 2d session of the 51st Congress :

The Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 7490) for the relief of Brevet Lieut.-Col. J. Madison Cutts, respectfully report as follows :

We find from the evidence and a careful examination of his record as certified by the War Department that this soldier, then a young lawyer, was one of the earliest of those who patriotically enlisted for the defense of the Union.

After serving as a private soldier in the First Rhode Island Volunteers (three months' service), he was commissioned by President Lincoln, at the request of Hon. Stephen A. Douglas, made shortly before his death, as captain of the Eleventh United States Infantry.

After organizing as mustering and disbursing officer Rhode Island troops, cavalry, artillery and infantry, he was ordered to report for duty on the staff of Major-General Burnside, and served on that general's staff as aid-de-camp, judge advocate, and in other staff capacities in his successive commands of the department of North Carolina, the Ninth Army Corps, the right wing of the Army of the Potomac, the Army of the Potomac, and the Department of the Ohio. During that period he was present in the battles of South Mountain, Antietam, and Fredericksburg, in which his services were of a very high order of distinction.

He thereafter served with his regiment in the Mine Run campaign of General Meade and in the many battles of General Grant's campaign of the Wilderness, and was acting field officer, and thereafter commanded his regiment at General Grant's headquarters, City Point, Va., and at General Meade's headquarters and in the battle of Fort Steadman, Va. His final service was in Louisiana, as commander of the post of Shreveport, La., with subposts at Marshall and Jefferson, Tex.

His services as a soldier were very varied, arduous, unremitted, often extremely hazardous, and involving great responsibilities, and he was at all times noted for ability and fidelity to duty and for conspicuous and distinguished acts of gallantry on many battle-fields, until after rallying his regiment, which had been broken by a decimating artillery fire in front of Petersburg, Va., June 18, 1864, he himself fell, as was at the time supposed, mortally wounded while advancing in front of his regiment in the line of battle which he had reformed.

He then incurred a disability, in the performance of a specific act of great gallantry, sufficient to have entitled him to be at once retired as captain. A little more than two years afterward he could have been retired under the act of Congress of July 26, 1866, with the rank of his command when wounded, that of a field officer.

Although often urged and advised to avail himself of the provisions of that act, he had no desire to become a charge upon the country he had helped to save, and remained in the service, although seriously disabled, hoping still to be of service to his country.

He resigned June 19, 1868, under circumstances of great personal distress and after having been tried by a court-martial on two sets of charges, which seem to have originated largely from personal difficulties with one of his officers.

At the time of his resignation Colonel Cutts believed that the court-martial had sentenced him to dismissal, but was entirely ignorant of the fact that the court had unanimously recommended, not mitigation or leniency, but the entire and absolute remission of the sentence, thus while rendering a technical or pro forma judgment themselves declaring that in view of all the circumstances the accused was not strictly amenable to their sentence.

This fact, by reason of his resignation, was not known to Colonel Cutts until May, 1890, and has only lately been officially certified by the secretary of war to your committee

His career since his resignation has been one of long-continued, useful and honorable effort in civil and professional life. The committee believe it highly to his honor, that after marrying and having eleven children, seven of whom are now living, he has forborne to press his claim and appeal for relief, until no longer able by reason of disability, the result of his wounds and exposures in the service, to bear the cares, anxieties and wants of his large family.

In view of his long-continued and distinguished services, entitling him in a marked degree to the gratitude of his country, the committee recommend that he be honorably restored to the status he held when wounded, and accordingly report favorably the bill for his retirement in the army, with the rank of captain.

In justice to the soldier, and in support of their action, your committee append the statements of the many distinguished soldiers, living and dead, who were his friends, immediate and associates, and comrades in arms.

APPENDIX.

Captain Cutts rendered efficient services as mustering and disbursing officer in organizing Rhode Island troops, for which he was personally thanked by the governor of that State.

Maj.-Gen. William Sprague, late governor of Rhode Island, writes :

“COLONEL: Say from me that your early action, the earliest who stirred, becoming the forlorn hope, against the organized South, entitle you to great consideration. More than that, your more than interested relations South would have restrained you had you not been more than ordinarily imbued with patriotic ardor. Besides, were you not the brother-in-law of Stephen A. Douglas. Your services were of a high order here, and I unite fully with all who certify to your services, with equally praiseworthy ones under my official eye.”

The statements of Maj.-Gens. Samuel D. Sturgis, J. D. Cox, John F. Hartranft, Hugh Ewing, Henry J. Hunt, and William B. Franklin, fully cover the period of his staff services.

Says General Sturgis :

“I was well acquainted with Colonel Cutts during the campaign in Maryland in 1862, and cannot speak in terms too high of the valuable, arduous and often hazardous services which he rendered at the battles of South Mountain and Antietam. My personal acquaintance with Colonel Cutts included also his services at the battle of Fredericksburg, Va., in the fall of 1862, where his services were well understood by the army corps (Ninth) to which we both belonged.

“I believe it may be safely said of Colonel Cutts that there are few officers of his rank and opportunities who have done so much and received so little in return.”

Writes General J. D. Cox :

“I take pleasure in stating that during the years 1862 and 1863 I was well acquainted with the military standing of Col. (then Captain) J. Madison Cutts, who was then serving on the staff of Major-General Burnside, commanding the right wing of the Army of the Potomac. This brought me in constant intercourse with the gentlemen of General Burnside's staff, and I know that Captain Cutts was among the most energetic, brave and intelligent of the officers in that service. He sought active field service as acting aid, and was found wherever severe duty was to be done.”

Says General Hunt :

“I knew and esteemed Colonel Cutts during the late war, whilst he was serving on the staff of General Burnside, commanding the Army of the Potomac, my own headquarters being with those of General Burnside.

“He bore the character of an active, intelligent and efficient officer, not only during that time but in the previous campaign in Maryland, when General McClellan commanded that army.

“After he joined his regiment I did not personally see so much of him, but his services were always well spoken of until he was disabled by a severe wound received in one of the assaults on Petersburg in June, 1864.”

Writes General Hartranft:

“I was well acquainted with Col. J. M. Cutts during his services with the Army of the Potomac, and up to the time of his disabling wound in front of Petersburg, June, 1864.

“He was distinguished for bravery and unswerving fidelity to duty, and I cheerfully testify to the very high regard in which he was held by his comrades and his superior officers. On the staff of Major-General Burnside and with his regiment he fully met every requirement of a gallant soldier and true patriot.”

Says General Hugh Ewing:

“The troops which I commanded were led to their position in line of battle at Antietam by Colonel Cutts, and the soldierly skill, coolness and bright courage displayed by him that day won from me the highest admiration.

“He displayed on that field the noble qualities that go to make up the brilliant soldier, and I do not recall a single other officer during the entire course of the war that so quickly and profoundly impressed me.

“What more can I say? He was a bright light on the field of battle, cheering up the duller spirits, and by such service long continued as few rendered or could render, he secured the gratitude of the soldier and earned the lasting gratitude of the Republic.”

Writes General Franklin:

“I well remember the fact that you were with me at the first battle of Fredericksburg, December 13, 1862, as a member of the staff of General Burnside, the commanding general, I being at the time the commander of the left grand division. The service that you then rendered was brave, able and efficient, and deserved honorable recognition by the authorities, although I have never heard that you received it. As our paths led in different directions after that time, I cannot speak positively of your services afterward; but I know that it was honorable and distinguished, and that you were severely wounded in action and were entitled to have been placed on the retired list had you applied to be so placed. I do not think that, under the circumstances, you ought to be considered as having lost your right to such a position now, and sincerely hope that you will be successful in your efforts to have your merits recognized by the action of Congress, for which you ask."

Says Maj.-Gen. Rufus Ingalls, chief quartermaster of the armies operating against Richmond :

"This certifies that I have personally known Col. J. Madison Cutts, captain, Eleventh Infantry, for years, running back before he entered the army. I saw much of him while he served in the Army of the Potomac on General Burnside's staff, and with his regiment. I saw him at City Point when dangerously wounded in battle on the 18th of June, 1864, and sent him to Washington for treatment. He is a man of fine education and had a robust constitution before his hard and dangerous service, but is now enfeebled from the effects of this service and wounds. As a soldier he stood high with all who served with him. No one questioned his ability, patriotism and bravery. He served faithfully, and is deserving of his country, now in his day of need."

In the early days of his recovery, while still confined to his bed, Captain Cutts was cheered and strengthened by a letter written by General Griffin, his division commander, to Mrs. Griffin, and by her brought to him to read :

Writes General Griffin :

“ I asked General Ayres to-day how Captain Cutts was getting on, and he replied he understood he was out of danger, and added he had made his mark as a gallant officer this campaign.

“ I doubt whether any officer of the regulars has been so specially gallant and attentive to duty as Captain Cutts, and it was a subject of universal remark before he was wounded or thought he was going to die ; still, it would not have surprised any one who had known his father.”

Writes General Ayers, his brigade commander :

“ My knowledge of Colonel Cutts dates back to his army service. He joined my command in 1864 and was with it in that long series of battles commencing with the Wilderness, through that, Spottsylvania Court-house, the North Anna, Cold Harbor, and the crossing of the James, to the front of Petersburg, when, in the assault on that place, June 18, he was severely wounded and carried from the field.

“ His good conduct was marked in all those battles, and in some of the severest his gallantry was conspicuous. He was a soldier who deserves well of his country.”

And again, in a separate paper, General Ayers, writing from personal knowledge, as an eye witness of the circumstances under which Colonel Cutts was wounded, says :

“ I have the honor to state, from personal knowledge, that Bvt. Lieut.-Col. J. Madison Cutts, late captain Eleventh Infantry, was second in command of his regiment (and acting field officer) on the 18th of June, 1864.

“In the engagement in front of Petersburg, Va., on that day a spherical case-shot burst in front of the regiment, killing seven men and wounding twenty-three others. Of course, confusion in the regiment followed. Colonel Cutts stepped to the front and straightened out the line. While doing so he was severely wounded and carried from the field. His conduct was, as on former occasions, conspicuous and gallant.”

It now remains to refer to the statement of that most distinguished and skillful surgeon, Dr. Basil Norris, U. S. Army, who attended Colonel Cutts while wounded. He writes:

“Capt. J. M. Cutts, Eleventh United States Infantry, was wounded on the 18th of June, 1864, in front of Petersburg, Va., while acting as field officer, and, as I have been informed, advancing in line of battle in front of his regiment.

“He was conveyed to Washington, where he arrived June 20, 1864, and placed under my treatment, and continued under my care until September following. His wound was a gunshot wound (rifle ball) of left side. The ball entered between the eighth and ninth ribs on a line below the axilla, fractured the ninth rib, penetrated the lung, and made its exit between the ninth and tenth ribs at a point about one inch from the spinal column.

“Captain Cutts was brevetted lieutenant-colonel for gallant and distinguished services in that campaign of the Army of the Potomac, having previously rendered conspicuous services in the preceding campaigns of the same army.

“His wound created a permanent disability, which then, and ever since, would have entitled him, had he requested while in the service, to be placed on the retired list.

“He never made such application, but before his wounds were entirely healed he rejoined his regiment and sought opportunities for further service and distinction.

“He resigned in 1868, and now, with a large family, after a long interval of honorable exertion, he finds himself no longer able to contend against his increasing disabilities incurred in the line of duty and in battle.

“Informed, as I am, that Colonel Cutts will apply to Congress to be placed on the retired list of the army, I would respectfully say that such recognition of his services and sufferings would only be in accordance with the custom of service in the regular army in like cases, and that I believe he abundantly merits such consideration.”

Colonel Cutts was twice brevetted for gallant and distinguished services. He was recommended for the colonelcy of one of the regiments of General Hancock's Veteran Corps. Although strongly commended by his brigade, division, corps and army commanders, Generals Ayers, Griffin, Warren and Meade, and although his detail was requested by General Hancock in person, it was declined and refused by the secretary of war, because he decided that the veteran corps was designed to bring back into the service those that were out of it, and he therefore would not order the detail of an officer already in the army.

The indorsement of that distinguished soldier, Maj.-Gen. G. K. Warren, the commander of the Fifth Army Corps, with reference to Captain Cutts' promotion to the colonelcy of a veteran corps regiment, followed the recommendations of his brigade and division commanders, Generals Ayers and Griffin, and was as follows:

“HEADQUARTERS FIFTH ARMY CORPS, August 24, 1864.”

“I could add nothing to the recommendations above, which I fully indorse. I hope such faithful service and suffering will not go unrewarded.”

Writes Maj.-Gen. Edward Ferrero :

“It affords me great pleasure to recommend Col. J. M. Cutts, having known him personally while connected with the Ninth Army Corps. A brave and accomplished officer, whose faithful services during the late war entitled him to the kind consideration of his fellow-men in general. I sincerely hope that his wishes to be retired will meet with the approval of the Senate and House.”

Writes Maj.-Gen. and ex-President R. B. Hayes :

“During the Antietam campaign I served in the same corps with Colonel Cutts and have sufficient information of his services throughout the war to be well assured that it was of decided merit.

“I am confident that he deserves the relief that Congress is asked to afford, and I trust sincerely that it will be granted.”

Testifies Brig.-Gen. David B. McKibben :

“It affords me great pleasure to add my testimony to your gallantry on the field of battle and to your high soldierly character when we served together in the Army of the Potomac. The records of the war department show this. All your brother officers were witnesses of it. Such being the case a generous country will not refuse its aid, only asked for when broken down by wounds and disease incurred battling for its existence.

“I sincerely wish you success, and I have not the slightest doubt you will achieve it. No one has a better claim and few as richly deserve of their country.”

Writes Maj.-Gen. Orlando B. Wilcox, now governor Soldiers' Home :

“I have read the abstract of your service in the army with great interest, and cheerfully add my testimony to the mass of evidence to your distinguished services during our acquaintance in the war of the rebellion.

“I remember your activity and great usefulness in the fights at South Mountain and Antietam, particularly where, as aid-de camp to General Burnside, you contributed so much to success, and I may safely say that no staff officer habitually exposed himself to danger in carrying orders and gaining intelligence more than yourself.

“In my humble judgment you are richly deserving retirement, with the rank of captain at least.”

Testifies Maj.-Gen. George W. Getty :

“I fully concur in all that has been said in your behalf.

“During the Maryland campaign, which resulted in the battles of South Mountain and Antietam, I was the chief of artillery of the right wing of the Army of the Potomac, You rendered most efficient aid to me in selecting positions for the artillery, and subsequently in conducting the batteries to the positions selected.

“In the Virginia campaign, under Major-General Burnside, your services were active and dangerous in carrying orders and gaining intelligence of the movements of General Lee’s army. No staff officer on General Burnside’s staff rendered more efficient or valuable services than yourself.

“Your services during the war were eminent and honorable, deserving the highest consideration.

“I do most sincerely hope that Congress, as a simple act of justice, will grant the relief you ask.”

2042. HENRY THEODORE CHEEVER (Rev.), is a son of Nathaniel and Charlotte (Barrell) Cheever; his father and grandfather, both Nathaniel, were born in Reading, Mass. His grandfather, Nathaniel Cheever, married Elizabeth Bancroft, sister of Dr. Aaron Bancroft, and aunt of George Bancroft, the historian. Henry T. Cheever was graduated at Bowdoin College in 1834, and afterward at Bangor Theological Seminary. After a long voyage for his health to South America and the Sandwich Islands, and some months spent in Spain, France and Louisiana he entered the ministry and was in charge of churches in Lodi, N. J., New York city, in Westport, Greenport and Jewett City, Conn., closing his active ministry with a nine years’ pastorate in Worcester, Mass. He has always been actively and fearlessly interested in public questions and moral reforms and has spent much of his energy in writing, speaking and working for the suppression of slavery, intemperance and other public evils, upon which he has published several works.

2039. GEORGE BARRELL CHEEVER was born at Hallowell, Me., April 17, 1807. He graduated at Bowdoin College in 1825, in the class with Longfellow, Hawthorne and Jonathan Cilley. He graduated from Andover Seminary in 1830, and was ordained pastor of the Howard Street Congregational Church, Boston, in 1832. In 1839, after a tour abroad, Dr. Cheever went to New York and took charge of the Allen Street Presbyterian Church. He was, after 1845, principal editor of "The New York Evangelist." In 1846 he was made pastor of the Church of the Puritans, and became renowned as a preacher who rigorously and forcibly applied orthodox principles to the current questions of the day. In 1870 he retired from the pulpit and has since resided at Englewood, N. J. On leaving New York he gave his house to the American Board and the American Missionary Association. Dr. Cheever contributed many letters to the "Observer," to the "Independent" and to the "Bibliotheca Sacra." Among the best known of his publications are "God's Hand in America" (1841), "Defense of Capital Punishment" (1846), "The Right of the Bible in our Public Schools" (1854), "Lectures on the Life, Genius and Insanity of Cowper" (1856), "God against Slavery, and the Freedom and Duty of the Pulpit to Rebuke It" (1857), "Guilt of Slavery and Crime of Slave-holding" (1860), "Faith, Doubt and Evidence" (1881). Dr. Cheever died at Englewood, N. J., in August, 1890, leaving a wife but no children.

2045. CHARLES CUTTS WILCOX, son of Captain David and Elizabeth D. (Cutts) Wilcox, was born in York, Me., in 1808. His early education was acquired in his native town. He removed to Illinois quite early in life, where he achieved distinction as a lawyer and judge.

Mr. Wilcox was married three times, his first wife being Miss Elizabeth Leonard, who survived but six years. She was a lovely petite woman of rather delicate organization, hardly fitted to cope with pioneer settling in a new country, the then far west. In 1839 he married Mrs. Augusta (Ernst) Peebles, a young widow, who died in 1845, leaving one daughter, now Mrs. Walter M. Smith of Stamford, Conn. His third wife, was Miss Alma Ann Chellis, whom he married in Rockford, Ill., in 1854. By her he had one daughter, now Mrs. Orron B. Spencer, M. D., of Kankakee, Ill.

2038. JOSEPH BROWN CUTTS, M. D., born in Kittery, Me., Oct. 9, 1820, is the eldest son and child of Capt Hiram and Eunice (Brown) Cutts; he studied medicine and graduated from the Bowdoin Medical School in 1842. He immediately began the practice of his profession in Buffalo Grove, Ogle Co., Ill. In 1849, on the outbreak of the gold fever in California, he sailed from Boston as surgeon of a passenger ship around Cape Horn to San Francisco, which he reached in July. After some rough mountain experience, he entered the employ of Adams & Co.'s express and banking-house at Stockton, Cal., and was with them when their disastrous failure took place in 1855. Returning from thence he resumed his profession in Buffalo Grove (then changed by the building of the Illinois Central railroad to Polo) and was there at the outbreak of the Civil War. In 1853 he married Anna Savage Thacher, daughter of Colonel Geo. Thacher, Esq.,* of Biddeford, Me., by whom he had one son, GEORGE THACHER CUTTS, who is at present secretary and treasurer of the Consolidated Coal Co., of St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. A. S. T. Cutts died in April, 1861, and, in September of the same year, he entered the military service as surgeon 2d Illinois Cavalry. He was present at Fort Donelson, Union City, Tenn., Bolivar, Tenn., Holly Springs, Miss., and in the operations around Vicksburg, Miss. After the fall of Vicksburg, his regiment with part of the 13th Army Corps to which it belonged, was transferred to the Gulf department and participated in the campaign of General Franklin in West Louisiana. At the expiration of three years, service in the field, he resigned from the cavalry and took a United States commission as surgeon United States Volunteers, and was placed on duty in the hospitals in New Orleans, Mobile and elsewhere until mustered out in October, 1865, with the rank of brevet lieutenant-colonel in the medical staff, United States Volunteers. He married his second wife, Marianne Burrows, daughter of John Burrows, Esq., of Philadelphia, Pa., and granddaughter of Wm. Morgan of Glenmorganshire, Eng., in New Orleans in 1865. She died in Louisiana, Mo., in 1877. He is at present residing with his son in the city of St. Louis, Mo.

2203. MARSENA EDGAR CUTTS, son of Edward and Elizabeth (Messer) Cutts, was born in Vermont. Quite early in life he removed and settled in Iowa. In June, 1857, he married Miss Helen Frick of Sheboygan, Wis. The following sketch of his life was taken from the "Chicago Inter-Ocean" after his death:

"The Hon. M. E. CUTTS, member of Congress from the Sixth District of Iowa, died at Oskaloosa to-day, aged 50 years. He was one of the leading Republicans of the Sixth Congressional District and of Iowa, and was one of the strongest men the State has produced. He once represented Mahaska county in the Legislature, and was for a period attorney-general of the State. In this capacity he represented the State in the Granger cases before the Supreme Court of the United States, and in winning these cases he added to the fine reputation he had already enjoyed at the bar. In 1880 Mr. Cutts was elected to Congress on the Republican ticket by a vote so close that it was reversed and his opponent seated. In 1883 he was elected to Congress again by a large and unquestioned plurality, and consequently his death causes a vacancy in that office. He was a bold, radical man, made strong friends and had strong enemies, but none of them ever said aught against his personal integrity. His service in Congress was broken by ill-health, as he had during the canvass of 1880 exposed himself to undue exertion in speaking, so that he almost entirely lost his voice. For almost a year his condition has been such as to cause the utmost apprehension to his family and friends. He commenced the practice of law in Poweshiek county, located at Oskaloosa, where he became prominent as a lawyer, banker and good citizen. He was a native of Vermont, and had strong mental qualities peculiar to New Englanders. His family of late years has been sadly afflicted. Three years ago he buried a noble and promising son just on the threshold of manhood. And in April last a beloved daughter was taken from him when he himself was supposed to be at the point of death. His death adds another chapter to one of the saddest family histories of Iowa. His death leaves a vacancy to be filled at the coming election. The governor will soon issue a proclamation calling an election."

2208. ANN ELIZA CUTTS, eldest daughter of Thomas and Fanny (Kingsley) Cutts, was born in Orwell, Vt., Apr. 30, 1833. Her education was received at Troy Conference Academy in Poultney, Vt., from which she graduated in 1854. She studied art with James Hope, and in 1856 was called to take the art department of the academy from which she graduated, which position she held until her marriage. In August, 1859, she married Rev. Mr. Widmer, a Methodist clergyman, by whom she had three children. Their home was for many years in Bennington, Vt., but more recently in Troy, N. Y.

2467. MARY DEARBORN JACKSON, daughter of Dr. George F. and Rachel (Dearborn) Jackson, married William Henry Bishop, July 28, 1886. Mr. Bishop was born in Hartford, Ct., Jan. 7, 1847, educated at Yale College and graduated in 1867. He had the honor of being the class poet. He studied architecture in New York, but afterward took up journalism at Milwaukee, Wis., to which his taste was inclined, where he resided several years. While there he wrote stories which found much favor with the "Atlantic Monthly." In 1877 he removed to New York and entered upon a distinctively literary career. The complete list of his published works is as follows:

"Detmold, a Romance," "The House of a Merchant Prince," "Choy Susan and Other Stories," "The Golden Justice," Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston.

"Old Mexico and the Lost Provinces," "Fish and Men in the Marine Islands," Harper & Bros., New York.

"The Brown Stone Boy and Other Queer People," Cassell & Co., New York.

"The Yellow Snake," Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

In 1888 he sailed for Europe with his wife to take up an extended residence there. He has recently contributed articles on his travels to the "Atlantic Monthly."

2476. CHARLES CHAUNCY SHOCKFORD, son of William and Joanna Chauncy (Moore) Shackford, was born in Portsmouth, N. H., where he received his early education. Later he was sent to Phillips Exeter Academy and Harvard College, graduating from the latter in 1835. Soon after leaving college he entered the ministry and was called to the Hawes Place Church in Boston. After that he was nineteen years pastor of the Second Congregational Church in Lynn, Mass. In 1871 he was chosen professor of rhetoric and literature in Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y., where he lived for a number of years. Since his retirement from the faculty of Cornell he has lived, until his death on Dec. 25, 1891, in Brookline, Mass., where his wife and four children survive him.

2485. MAJOR-GENERAL FITZ JOHN PORTER, son of Lieutenant John and Eliza Chauncy (Clark) Porter, was born in Portsmouth, N. H., in 1822. He was nephew of Commodore David D. Porter of Essex renown. His earliest instruction was received at Alexandria, Va., after which it was continued at the well-known Phillips Exeter Academy in New Hampshire. He prepared for West Point at the school of Stephen M. Weld, in Jamaica Plain, Mass. He entered the Military Academy as a cadet in 1841, and graduated eighth in a class of one hundred and twenty-three members, which graduated forty-five members. He was at once commissioned brevet second lieutenant (1845) and attached to the Fourth Artillery. During the summer of his graduation he was selected for duty at West Point as an assistant in the department of artillery and cavalry, and engaged in instructing the cadets during encampment, and was later sent to join his regiment at Fortress Monroe. In July, 1846, he joined the army at Fort Isabel, Tex., and saw active service at Saltillo in the same year. Six months later he embarked at Brazos and accompanied General Scott's army. Throughout the entire Mexican War he was conspicuous for gallant and meritorious service. He was brevetted successively captain and major. In 1849 he was assigned to duty at West Point, where he remained for six years. During that time he was instructor of natural and experimental philosophy, adjutant of the Military Academy, and finally instructor of artillery and cavalry. In 1856 he was appointed assistant adjutant-general, and was assigned to the staff of General Persifer F. Smith, commanding in Kansas.

In 1857, while on duty at New York, Porter was assigned to the staff of General A. S. Johnston, and accompanied him to Utah, enduring that ever-memorable campaign in the Rocky Mountains. In the fall of 1860 was assigned to duty as assistant inspector-general at the headquarters of the army in New York city. In April, 1861, he was on duty in the adjutant-general's office in Washington. Until August, 1861, he served under General Patterson and his successor, General Banks. In recognition of his services Major Porter was appointed by the secretary of war, colonel of the Fifteenth Infantry, and soon after brigadier-general of volunteers, when he was assigned to duty in Washington to organize regiments into brigades and assign them to divisions. General Porter was next assigned to Fort Corcoran to relieve General Wm. T. Sherman, transferred to command in the West. General Porter fought in the battles of New Bridge, Hanover Courthouse, Mechanicsville, Gaines Mill, Turkey Bridge and Malvern. For meritorious service in this campaign he was, without solicitation, brevetted a brigadier-general in the regular army, and appointed a major-general of volunteers. He served under General Pope for several days at the close of his remarkable campaign, fighting under him the memorable second battle of Bull Run.

Soon after his arrival in Washington, an order was issued from the war department directing the formation of a military commission to examine into charges which had been preferred against him by General Pope. This order was afterward revoked and a court-martial ordered. It is unnecessary to enter into any account of the trial, as this volume is meant only to give an outline of the lives of the more distinguished members in the biographical portion. Tardy justice has been accorded, and those who wish can learn more by consulting the published records of the war department. In 1869 the khedive of Egypt offered to General Porter the position of commander of his army with the rank of major-general. This brilliant offer General Porter declined, as he preferred to remain in his own country. General Porter lives at present in New York city. There he has been commissioner of public works, and in 1884 was appointed one of the police commissioners, which office he vacated in May, 1888, when he was appointed fire commissioner. The last position he held one year, since which he has not held public office. He is president of the Asphaltic Slag Paving and Roofing Company, and president of the Society for Instruction in First Aid to the Injured.

In 1857 he married Miss Harriet Pierson Cook, daughter of John and Hannah (Sanford) Cook, by whom he has had two sons and two daughters, all of whom are living.

2523. MARY ANN SCREVEN, daughter of Thomas and Mary Ann (Smith) Screven, married George Philip Frierson, M. D., in Charleston, S. C., where they lived severa yearsl. After her father's death they removed to Lowndes county, Ala., because it was a new country and the opening better for a physician than in the older States. They lived there several years and Dr. Frierson continued to practice medicine and farming. Being an unusually bright man with the greatest possible fondness for books, Dr. Frierson made a very successful physician. After his wife's death he married her sister, MARTHA ELEANOR SCREVEN, who had always lived with them. The climate not agreeing with Dr. Frierson's health, and disliking the society, he concluded to try a new country again. He removed to De Soto parish, in Louisiana, about 1850. There he bought about 10,000 acres of land and proceeded to clear the forest and plant cotton. He still practiced his profession, but not on a large scale, as the country was too sparsely settled. They brought their slaves with them, and the friendship existing between owners and servants was of the tenderest. When he proposed at one time to sell his negroes to persons more sanguine of the Confederacy than he, and leave America to go to Europe, his wife begged him with tears in her eyes not to do it. The thought of trusting her black dependents to others was abhorrent to her, so her husband gave way and remained their friend and counselor until the crash came. After the war was over Dr. and Mrs. Frierson concluded they would like to go away from the States. They were induced by books and friends to go to Central America. They lived there three years, but did not like it enough to remain, so they returned and selected Pensacola, Fla., as an abiding place.

Mrs. Frierson was a frail delicate woman, and the various misfortunes and hardships told heavily upon her. She was possessed of great force of character, and was a remarkably intellectual woman. Her death occurred in Pensacola in 1876, where she was buried. In the same year Dr. Frierson, and such of his family as had not preceded him, returned to their old home in Louisiana to develop the place. Dr. Frierson passed away in 1883, and his homestead and lands are still held in the possession of his children. He had fifteen children, of whom six passed on before him, and the remainder live on or near the old homestead, with the exception of Dr. William Screven Frierson and his family, who reside in Dallas, Tex. The home place has a mill for ginning cotton, and a plantation store. It is known as Frierson's Mill in the post-office directory and situated about twenty-five miles south of the city of Shreveport, La.

2602. MARY TRAILL SPENCE LOWELL, daughter of Rev. Charles and Harriet Brackett (Spence) Lowell was born in December, 1810. In April, 1832, she married Samuel Raymond Putnam, Esq., who died in 1867, by whom she had four children, three sons and one daughter. Two of her sons lived to be 21 and 22 years of age before they were taken from her; the other died in infancy, leaving her daughter as her only companion now. Mrs. Putnam inherited her father's linguistic talent, and is noted as the author of some very able papers on Polish and Hungarian literature. She has also written a dramatic poem. She lives at present in her home on Beacon street in Boston, Mass.

2606. ROBERT TRAILL SPENCE LOWELL, son of Rev. Charles and Harriet Brackett (Spence) Lowell, was born in October, 1816. He graduated at Harvard College in 1833, and after acquiring a medical education became a clergyman in the Episcopal church. In 1846 and 1847, in Newfoundland, where he gathered materials for his novel, "The New Priest of Conception Bay." This was issued in 1858 and again in 1863, with illustrations by Darley. In 1860 he published a volume of poems entitled "Fresh Hearts that Failed Three Thousand Years Ago." From 1869 to 1873 he was Head Master of St. Mark's School at Southboro, Mass. Afterwards he was professor of Latin in Union College. These are his chief works and positions held, although he accomplished a great deal as a writer and as a teacher. His death occurred on the 12th of September, 1891, a month after that of his brother James.

2605. JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL, youngest son and child of Rev. Charles and Harriet Brackett (Spence) Lowell, was born in Cambridge, Mass., February 22, 1819. He graduated from Harvard College in 1838, and was twice married. His first wife, Miss Maria White, was gifted as a writer of beautiful poems, and his second wife, Miss Frances Dunlap, was equally gifted. His whole life has become so much the property of the world at large that it is unnecessary to add any thing to what has been written. His poems and prose works will live in the memory of all who read them. Few are born to fill such eminent positions, statesman, diplomat, litterateur, poet, essayist, critic and professor. All these he filled and when he "passed on" in August, 1891, the whole world mourned his loss.

1203. NATHANIEL APPLETON HAVEN, Jr., was born in Portsmouth, January 14, 1790, and graduated from Harvard College in 1807. He studied law under Hon. Jeremiah Mason, and was admitted to the bar in 1811. January 8th, 1816, he married his cousin, Eliza Wentworth Haven, and died June 3d, 1826.

2607. HON. CARROLL SPENCE, son of Robert Traill and Mary Clare (Carroll) Spence, was born at Baltimore, Md., in 1818. He was educated at St. Mary's College. After completing his education there he studied law, was admitted to the bar and began the practice of his profession in Baltimore. In 1842 and 1843 he was a member of the Legislature.

In 1843 he married Rebecca Carroll, daughter of Charles Ridgely Carroll of Baltimore. In 1854 he was sent by President Pierce minister to Turkey.

2060. COM. CHARLES WILLIAM WHIPPLE PICKERING, son of Isaac W. and Louisa Josepha Whipple (Spence) Pickering, was born in Portsmouth, N. H. His early education was received in that city. On May 1, 1822, he was appointed a midshipman in the navy from New Hampshire, and was assigned to duty on board the sloop-of-war Cyane, which vessel was ordered to the west coast of Africa. In 1833 he was promoted to be passed midshipman, and Dec. 8, 1838, received his commission as lieutenant. In 1834 he was executive officer of the Cyane in the expedition to Darien and the noted bombardment of Greytown. In 1855 he was promoted to be commander and was ordered to Portsmouth navy-yard, where he remained three years. July 15, 1862, he was commissioned captain, and ordered to command the United States ship Kearsarge, then fitting out at this port, but was detached from that vessel in 1862 and given command of the Housatonic. He remained in this vessel until she was destroyed by a torpedo in Charleston harbor, February, 1865, receiving injuries from which he never fully recovered. As soon as he was able to resume his duties he was given the United States ship Vanderbilt, but was detached from that vessel, and again ordered to the Portsmouth navy-yard in Aug., 1865. He was retired at his own request in 1867, receiving promotion to commodore the same year. He was thus, it is seen, in the naval service for more than 65 years. He died in St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 29, 1888.

2768. WILLIAM GRAY WISE, son of Daniel and Mary (Walker) Wise, was born in Portsmouth, N. H., May 23, 1821, and a descendant in a direct line from Rev. John Wise of Ipswich, Mass. His early education was received at Phillips Academy in Exeter, N. H., which he entered in 1835. His desire to enter the United States Military Academy at West Point was checked by the death of his father in 1837, and the earnest request of his mother to relinquish the idea of a military career. He had devoted some time to the study of civil engineering under Prof. James Hayward of Boston, but relinquished to take employment in a mercantile house in New York city. On arriving at the age of twenty-one he entered business as a member of the firm of McGregor & Wise, which at a later period became McGregor, Wise & Morris. Disposing of his interest later he took the selling agency of a sugar refinery in New York in which he invested all his means. This ended in disaster through the manager's villainy, and at twenty-six young Wise found himself penniless. He was soon after engaged as secretary in the investigation of the affairs of the Boston and Maine railroad, and aided in preparing the report submitted to the stockholders. This gave him reputation as an accountant, and he soon after became assistant treasurer of the Merrimac Manufacturing Company of Lowell, Mass. This company was at that time the largest manufacturing corporation in the country, and he held this responsible position fourteen years. During this time he resided in Lowell, where he served four years as a member of the school committee, and was for some years a director of the Public Library, and also a trustee of the Middlesex Mechanics' Association. In 1857 he was chairman of the committee of one hundred citizens appointed to organize the Republican party in the city of Lowell, and became chairman of the Republican city committee in the election following, in which the "Know Nothing party" was wiped out and the Republicans assumed the reins of government for the first time, Nathaniel P. Banks being chosen governor. Mr. Wise was elected to represent a Lowell district in the Legislature, where he was complimented by an appointment as chairman, on the part of the House of Representatives, of the joint committee on public charitable institutions. Yielding to the urgent demands of business, however, he declined a renomination to office. A soldiers' aid society being organized after the opening of the Civil War, Mr. Wise took the secretaryship, and was instrumental in sending a large amount of money to the families of soldiers from the city of Lowell. In 1862 Mr. Wise was appointed regimental quartermaster of the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment. He accompanied them to the field and took his full part in the campaigns. Before the term for which his regiment had enlisted was expired Captain Wise was offered the treasuryship of a corporation about to be organized in Auburn, N. Y. As a matter of duty to his wife and family he felt obliged to accept the offer. He resigned his commission in 1863, much against the desire of his superior officers, and was elected one of the trustees and treasurer of the Auburn Woolen Company. This position he held until his death in 1886. In 1883 he bought in connection with two associates an old woolen mill property and organized the Canoga Woolen Company, of which he became treasurer. During the residence of Mr. Wise in Auburn he was for a long time trustee of the Cayuga County Savings Bank, of the Seymour Library and of the City Hospital, being also president of the last-named institution. From 1876 to 1881 he was chairman of the board of excise commissioners. During Governor Dix's administration he was appointed assistant quartermaster general of the National Guard of the State of New York, with rank of major, and attached to the staff of General John H. Chedell, commanding the Twenty-third Brigade. He died very suddenly in his office in Auburn, N. Y. (while engaged in transacting business), of heart disease, on Sept. 13, 1886. His wife was Miss Annie Pierrepont, daughter of Dr. Jas. H. Pierrepont of Portsmouth, N. H., and granddaughter on the maternal side of Capt. Thos. Manning of that city. Very beautiful remarks were made by Wm. Lloyd Garrison, Jr., at his burial service on Friday, Sept. 17, which have been printed in pamphlet form. We regret for lack of room that we cannot reproduce them here.

Dr. Rust practiced his profession at South Paris, Me., until 1865, when he was appointed by Hon. Wm. P. Fessenden, inspector of internal revenue for the district of Maine. Resigning this office the next year he removed to Boston and entered the firm of Rust Bros. & Bird, wholesale druggists, from which he retired in 1890.
